MRS. FLOYD CLEARED OF LARCENY CHARGE BROUGHT BY SUITOR

JURY VINDICATES WOMAN PROSECUTED BY AGED MAN.

Mrs. Maude Floyd was found "not guilty" in the Superior Criminal Court today by a jury which deliberated for only fifteen minutes before returning its verdict.

She had been on trial charged with having stolen $2,600 from Patrick W. Edwards of No. 3,585 Washington street, Jamaica Plain.

As soon as she heard the verdict that freed her she and her counsel, William H. Sullivan, advanced to the jury and thanked the twelve men.

Edwards, who, according to the testimony of Mrs. Floyd, had asked her to marry him, had given her a $3,000 automobile and had told her that he would give her $85,000, was in court when the verdict was returned to Judge Fessenden.

Edwards Hurried Out.

Edwards, who still wore the white vest that made him conspicuous while on the witness stand yesterday, was out of the court room to-day as soon as he heard the foreman of the jury say "Not guilty."

The brunette widow tripped to the jury box and said to the occupants of it:

"Gentlemen, I thank you from the bottom of my heart."

"I want to thank you, too," said her counsel, Mr. Sullivan.

Mrs. Floyd then said:

"For six weeks I have been locked up in the Charles Street Jail. I was sent there because this man who had really given me $2,600 repented of his generosity afterward and charged me with having stolen the money. I shall now look for my little eight-year-old girl and we will go somewhere and live quietly."

Money Belongs to Her.

Today's verdict makes it unnecessary for Mrs. Floyd to live in the absolute obscurity of dire poverty. The verdict clinches her title to the $2,600 which she says Edwards gave her. She placed the money in the hands of a friend before she went to jail.

Mrs. Floyd, who at one time had protected a breach of promise suit against Edwards, could not say to-day just the course in litigation would now be.

While she was on the witness stand in her own defence she told her story about Edwards's infatuation for her to an audience that included Mrs. Edwards, the wife of the complainant. Mrs. Edwards sat beside her white-vested husband through the proceedings. She heard Mrs. Floyd testify that Edwards had met her (Mrs. Floyd) in a Washington street store where she was employed, had proposed marriage and had taken her to Portsmouth to have the ceremony performed, that he had charged his child there and had brought the young widow back to Boston, where he had lived with her until their quarrel in May last which resulted in her arrest upon a charge of larceny he preferred. Her defence was that Edwards had given her the money.

Woman Found 'Not Guilty' of Robbing Her Suitor

KILLS A GIRL, ESCAPES MOB SHOOTS MAN

Beautiful Church Organist Slain by Aged Admirer in Fifth Avenue—Murderer, Pursued by Thousands, Fled Through A. G. Spalding's Sporting Goods Store After Firing on Crowd—Later Killed Merchant Who Refused Him Money.

BULLETIN.

NEW YORK, July 23.—Warner, the slayer of the Norling girl, after his escape from Spalding's store, went to the office of J. P. Wilson, a manufacturer on Waverly place, and demanded $10, which was refused. He shot Wilson three times, inflicting wounds which probably will prove fatal. He was captured on leaving the place.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, July 23.—Miss Esther Norling, the beautiful cashier in William G. White's haberdashery at No. 3 West Forty-second street, was shot and killed to day on Fifth avenue as she approached the store by an aged admirer and former employer, Frank Warner.

Warner, after killing the young girl who had spurned his love, brushed through a great crowd with his drawn revolver and took refuge in the sporting goods store of A. G. Spalding & Brother, No. 31 West Forty-second street, from where in ambush he gave battle to the police and the pursuing crowds, firing at them repeatedly.

After driving back the police it was believe that Warner had either concealed himself in the store or had escaped to the back yard. Police reserves from two stations, all with drawn pistols, surrounded the entire block between Fifth and Sixth avenues and Forty-second and Forty-third streets, while a searching party went through the buildings and yards. The crowds which gathered rivalled in number those which were attracted by the assassination in Union square yesterday of the millionaire rug importer. Traffic in Forty-second street and in Fifth avenue was blocked by the tens of thousands of persons who flocked to the scene on the first reports of the tragedy. Additional reserves from stations more remote were called to the block to keep the crowds moving.

Victim Was a Church Organist.

Miss Norling, who was twenty-one years old and reputed to be one of the prettiest young women in any of the high-class stores on the thoroughfare leading to the Grand Central station, lived in Ridgefield, N. J., where she was the organist in the Baptist Church, and where she stood exceptionally high in the estimation of the community. She was known as a very modest and charming young woman. Her hand had been sought by the most desirable young men of the suburb, and it was reported that she had recently accepted the proposal of a wealthy young man whose family lives at Richfield Park.

Warner is said to be at least sixty years old. For many years he had a hat business in Forty-second street, near Fifth avenue, and until William G. White opened his haberdashery near the corner of Fifth avenue Miss Norling had been his cashier. White took Miss Norling from Warner. The latter had professed love for his pretty cashier, but she had given him no encouragement, and when the opportunity presented itself she left his employ. Soon after this Warner went out of business. Since then Warner had persistently annoyed Miss Norling and she had thought of asking police protection from him.

LYNN MAN NEAR DEATH BY TRENCH CAVE-IN

LOOSENED WALLS BURY LABORER; IS RESCUED BY COMRADES.

Special to the Boston American.

LYNN, July 23—Held prisoner for two hours and a half in a trench filled with sand, James Thompson, a laborer, was extricated to-day by men who were spurred on to their work by the fear that the imprisoned man might lose courage and sink to death by suffocation under the shifting sand.

During the two hours and a half that Thompson was held by the sand, only his head, shoulders and arms were visible. He had worked his arms free after falling into the trench. By the time he was rescued he was exhausted.

Thompson is employed by A. E. Bryer, a contractor. To-day he went to work upon a nine-foot sewer trench at Summer and Shepard streets. As he was working the walls became loosened, and, as he strove to get out, the sand fell in upon him and packed him close.

David J. Sheehan, a contractor, saw Thompson's head sticking out of the sand. Sheehan called others, and the men set to work. They had to proceed very carefully, lest Thompson be completely covered by the sand. After much labor they got him out, and he was sent to his home in Amity street.

HOTEL ROCKINGHAM ON FIRE; GUESTS FLEE

PALATIAL HOSTELRY AT PORTSMOUTH, N. H., FEARED DOOMED—MANY OVERCOME.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., July 23, 12:10 o'clock.—At this time the flames are breaking through the roof of the Hotel Rockingham, and it looks as though the structure is doomed.

Special to the Boston American.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., July 23.—A number of persons were overcome by smoke, and the guests of Hotel Rockingham were thrown into a panic shortly before noon to-day, when a fire started in the painful structure and threatened the destruction of the million-dollar building.

The Rockingham was one of the finest hotel buildings in New England. It was established by the late Frank Jones of this city.

The hotel was crowded with Summer guests. The first alarm of fire was heard through the building about 11 o'clock. Smoke soon filled the many rooms, and there was a wild rush among those in the hotel to safety.

Entire Fire Force Called.

It is not known yet how the fire started. The flames were first seen under the coping in the rear. Before anyone could get at the fire it had flashed up through the building.

As soon as the first firemen reached the scene alarm after alarm was sent out until four had been rung. This called the entire department to the scene.

Guests who were on the outside of the building when the flames were first discovered ran into the hotel in an effort to reach their rooms to save their valuables. Women ran here and there, crying that their property would be lost. Several fainted from fright.

Fired Building Doomed.

As the dense smoke rolled through the building, driving every tenant and all of the help to the street, the fear increased that the building was doomed.

The women who were overcome by the smoke were carried into a building near by and restored to consciousness.

The hotel contained 460 rooms and had accommodations for 700 guests.

When the peace conference was held in this State, many of those who were connected with the negotiations stopped at this hotel.

THE WEATHER.

Probably showers and thunder storms this afternoon or to-night. Wednesday fair. Light westerly winds.

$200,000 LAWRENCE FIRE DESTROYS MILLS

20,000 PEOPLE WATCH THE BLAZE; RAILROAD TRAINS BLOCKED.

LAWRENCE, July 22.—Fire which broke out at 12:25 a. m. to-day in the City Flour mills of the Chandler Milling & Grinding Company destroyed the entire plant, causing a loss of about $200,000 and throwing fifty men out of work.

The blaze, which was highly spectacular, was witnessed by over 20,000 people, lined along the Merrimac River banks, on which the mills were situated, and on the adjacent streets.

The Broadway iron bridge, located at one end of the main mill, was badly warped by the heat and was only saved from ruin by continuous streams of water. The New Milton Hotel, only twenty-five feet away, was just saved, and the plant of the Merrimac Paper Company was constantly in danger. The sleepers of the Boston & Maine railroad bridge were several times in flames.

Trains were blocked by lines of hose across the tracks at one end of the mill. The train leaving Boston at 3 o'clock and arriving here at 3:50 was unable to pass the mills.

Firemen Narrowly Escape.

At the height of the fire the walls of the main building fell in, just as a score of firemen had moved to another point. None is known to have been injured, though there were several narrow escapes.

The cause of the fire is not determined. The buildings destroyed were the main brick mill, four stories high, a four-story wooden store house and a grain elevator 100 feet high. The flames originated in the top floor of the main structure and burst through the roof with a roar. There were no lights, nor any fire in the mill and it is believed electric wires became crossed.

The first alarm was turned in at 12:25 and a general alarm was sounded five minutes later, when the fire chief saw that the plant was doomed and that other structures were in peril. The heat from the main building was so intense that it was impossible to save the rest of the plant, and the firemen's attentions were confined entirely to the bridges and other buildings.

There were several dust explosions which endangered none, but only made the flames burst forth more violently. Four engines were pumping water from hydrants and the nearby canal, the water tower was in operation and thirty streams were thrown.

False Alarm by Hoodlums.

When the immense elevator caught the flames shot hundreds of feet above the roof, itself 100 feet in the air, making a thrilling spectacle. Amid the din of the fire engines, the roar of the flames and the cries of the spectators, a half dozen locomotives in the B. & M. round house close by kept up a shrieking with their whistles, sounding the alarm until nearly half the population of the city was out of bed.

At 2 a. m., while the fire fighters were having their hardest battle to save surrounding property, another alarm was rung in from box 27, three-fourths of a mile distant. This proved a false call, evidently being pulled by hoodlums. It worried the fire department, however. Chemical engines and hose wagons were quickly dispatched to the scene, the chemicals not being used at the mill fire.

The president of the Chandler Milling & Grinding Company is Frank E. Chandler of Medford. The firm makes a specialty of rye and corn meals, which are shipped all over the world. The mills will probably be rebuilt. The company is insured.

MILLIONAIRE VICTIM OF HUB MURDER PLOT

RICH ARMENIAN SLAIN BY REVOLUTIONIST—BOTH WELL KNOWN IN BOSTON.

As a result of a plot hatched in Boston, H. S. Tavshanjian, one of the wealthiest and most influential Armenians in the United States, lies dead in New York. He was shot down in the street by a member of a revolutionary organization, who says that he did it because the merchant would not contribute money for his country's cause.

The prisoner is Bedros Hampartzoomian. He is well known in this city, Chelsea, Worcester and Providence. He killed the millionaire rug importer in Union square, New York, because he refused to contribute $200,000 to the home revolutionary cause.

DONS BLACK CAP SIGN.

When the man fell dead as the result of two bullet wounds, his assassin donned a black cap—the sign manual of success in the work he had undertaken—and awaited arrest.

"You may do what you please with me," the murderer said at the new Tenderloin police station in West Twentieth street, in New York. "I killed him to save my country. Men of his great wealth owe it to their native country to give money to the cause of freedom for which we are struggling. He gave none. Your George Washington fought for his country's freedom. I have done no more than Washington."

The prisoner comes from Marash in Harpout, where the Hunchakist, a revolutionary society, has its well-spring. He has been in this country two years, he says, but speaks no English. He admitted that he came to New York from Chicago, where he worked in a dry goods factory and lived at No. 41 Archer street, expressly to kill Mr. Tavshanjian.

Worked About Boston.

The prisoner said he could not speak English, but once, unwittingly, he revealed a knowledge of the language by answering a question of Mr. Manley's before the interpreter translated it. This was the story he told through the interpreter:

"My name is Bedros Hampartzoomian. I am an Armenian, twenty-four years old. I have a wife and child in Harpout, Armenia. I lived there before I came to this country six years ago. The man I killed, Tavshanjian, once lived there, too. I knew of him.

"First I went to Worcester, Mass. I worked as a laborer in an iron works. Then I went to Boston. I worked there in a blanket factory—I don't know the name or address. But I lived with a cousin in Chelsea, just outside of Boston. The house was No. 45 Washington avenue. Then I went to Chicago, six months ago.

TO OVERTHROW SULTAN.

"I belong to the Hunchakist, a revolutionary secret society. Our object is to overthrow the Sultan of Turkey and get revenge for the terrible inhuman treatment of our poor Armenian women by Turkish soldiers. We try to get money from rich Armenian merchants in America. We dare not work openly in Turkey or Armenia, so we work here.

"For several weeks I have been closely reading the Armenian papers, and have read terrible tales of how our women were dishonored and butchered. The papers, too, told how some of the rich men here, Tavshanjian among them, refused to give of their wealth to avenge our wives and daughters.

"I knew in the society's councils that he had been warned to give up money or die. He always refused. My society sent him letters which he did not answer. I was told in Chicago last year they determined to do something that would frighten him into contributing to the cause.

TOLD OF FRIEND'S COMING FATE.

"They sent Vartanian, one of our patriots, to Constantinople. After he had gone

VANDERBILT TO BE FIRE CHIEF

PROVIDENCE, July 23.—With the completion of the new water system, which has recently been installed at Oakland Farm, the Portsmouth home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt, a regular fire department has been organized among the small army of servants that are employed on the farm. A drill was held yesterday for the benefit of Mr. Vanderbilt, who will be chief

FITZGERALD THREATENS WHITNEY

Will Dip Up Third Candidate Unless McNary and Sullivan Are "Called Off."

PILITICIANS ARE AMAZED

Mayor Fitzgerald, in an official statement published to-day, threatens to put a third candidate into the field for the Democratic nomination for the governorship unless Henry M. Whitney calls off his two lieutenants, former Congressmen McNary and Sullivan, in their attacks on the Mayor.

The Mayor in his statement claims to be able to deliver the delegates from twenty-three of the twenty-five wards of Boston, presumably excepting Wards 8 and 9, the strongholds of Lomasney and "Jim" Donovan. Published in a morning paper whose City Hall representative is on the Mayor's Publicity Bureau payroll, the statement must be regarded as authoritative. It has all the earmarks of the Mayor's office.

That statement admits that which has been apparent for some time, that His Honor is not enthusiastic over the Bartlett candidacy, believing that General Bartlett has not sufficient strength to win the nomination. The "threat" to Whitney which has created a furore in State political circles is as follows:

Mayor's Ultimatum.

"It can also be said that the Mayor is of the opinion that unless conditions change, and some of Mr. Whitney's followers, including Messrs. McNary and Sullivan, let up in their attacks, he will dig up a third candidate and make the fight for his nomination.

"Those who are next to the Mayor say that he is convinced that any candidate who is nominated by the Democracy of the State for Governor must have practically the united support of the Boston Democracy.

"This, it is claimed, the Mayor can deliver at the proper time, and with a strong Boston delegation he could turn the nomination any way he saw fit."

Politicians Amazed.

Prominent politicians read the Mayor's statement to-day with amazement. It is the general opinion that the Mayor is inviting trouble for himself. It has been known to the Whitney leaders for some time that Mayor Fitzgerald was not sincere in his apparent support of the Bartlett boom, and that as an opportune moment he would jump aboard the Whitney bandwagon. That he has not made the jump as yet is due to his inability, it is asserted, to derive the proper political use of the bandwagon seat.

To-day's statement is regarded as the Mayor's last resort to smoke out McNary and Sullivan. It is the general opinion that the Mayor has waited too long in making his effort. His statement that he can deliver twenty-three of the twenty-five wards is laughed at. The ward leaders in a majority of the wards have done business direct with Whitney headquarters.

Mr. Whitney is billed to speak at the Tammany Club outing saturday. This shows where Leader "Jim" Curley stands, and the Curley boss always enjoyed the reputation of doing business directly, and not through the medium of the Mayor.

RESCUE MAN LOST AT SEA FOR 4 DAYS

Gloucester Fisherman Was Unconscious When Picked Up by Vessel.

Without food or drink, and afrift from Saturday to Wednesday in a small boat upon the open sea, twice within reach of rescue, but each time failing because the vessel that was going to his assistance lost him in the dense fog, Daniel Menise of the fishing schooner Clara G. Silver of Gloucester reached Boston yesterday.

He brought with him a story of hardship and suffering amply borne out by his appearance. For when he was rescued his tongue was so swollen from thirst that he could not close his mouth. He was white and haggard and those aboard who had not seen him own grave.

"I was out in a dory on Saturday morning, July 13," he said, "tending my trawl. The trawl parted, and I started adrift in the fog.

Waves Shirt for Signal.

"I shouted, but no one answered, and the fog closed down so thick that I could not see a dozen feet into it.

"All Saturday and Saturday night and Monday I drifted about in the fog. I had nothing to eat and only water, and almost went mad.

"On Monday I sighted a schooner. I tied my shirt to an oar and stood on while I waved it. I was sure that the schooner must have seen me, because they changed their course and bore down upon me. But before they could reach me, the fog closed down again, and I was lost.

"I was worn out, but I shouted for all I was worth, hoping that I would be heard and rescued.

Was Found Unconscious.

"Nobody answered, and again I was alone on the sea. Through Monday night I drifted about, and on Tuesday I sighted a steamer. I waved my shirt on the oar again, but they couldn't have seen me.

"Through Tuesday night I was alone, but on Wednesday I sighted a big tug or steamer and taken into Yarmouth. When I was found I was unconscious.

Menise was brought to Boston to-day on the Dominion-Atlantic liner Boston, upon which he had been placed at Yarmouth by United States Acting Consul Wilson Doyle.

FREE HUB BOYS IN DEATH CASE

Two Boston boys, James Collins, sixteen, of 124 Shirley street, Roxbury, and Charles Hall, seventeen, of 31 Dix street, who were yesterday arrested in New York on suspicion of knowing something of the mysterious death of Dr. James Edwin Russell, were freed last night after a searching examination by the New York police.

LIFE SAVED BY HEROINE OF 11

Little Katherine Meade, the eleven-year-old heroine of Quincy, who saved four-year-old Alberic Grant from drowning yesterday off Brackett's wharf, is to-day receiving the congratulations of friends for her remarkable bravery.

Katherine discovered him just as he tripped on the stringpiece and fell overboard.

Instantly she jumped into the water and grabbed the little fellow when both were several feet beneath the surface. Then ensued a fierce struggle to reach the air, and, despite the weight of the child, who had become quite limp and heavy, the girl won.

CROWDS ANNOY MRS. FAIRBANKS

DANVERS, July 23.—Vice-President Fairbanks will join his family at the Pedrick farm, Putnamville, during Boston's old home week. His two sons, Frederick and Richard, have arrived by train from Amsterdam, N. Y., having left their automobiles, after a collision, for repair.

The Pedrick farm is besieged by curious crowds, scores of persons even intruding upon the family. Mrs. Fairbanks is annoyed by these intrusions.

MUSEUM FREE HOME WEEK.

The Museum of Fine Arts will be open free to the public during Old Home Week, July 28 to August 3.

BROTHER-IN-LAW KILLS WOMAN

PROVIDENCE, July 23.—Annie Sheffington, aged thirty-two, wife of John Sheffington, was shot and killed in her home last night, at No. 486 Valley street. William Sheffington, her brother-in-law, aged twenty-four, fired the shot, which he declares was accidental. He was arrested a few minutes after the tragedy by Patrolman Brown of the Sixth Station, who found him on the street near the Sheffington home, having made no effort to get away.

BAR INDICTED FRISCO MEN

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23.—The action of Patrick Calhoun in appointing himself, Thorawell Mullaly and William Abbott, all under indictment in bribery charges, as delegates to the industrial peace conference which opens to-day, caused such indignation and protest on the part of the other delegates that a committee of arrangements demanded that Calhoun withdraw the names of himself and his two subordinates and substitute others. Many refused to attend the sessions as delegates if Calhoun was to be seated.

AID NEEDED FOR CONSUMPTIVES

An appeal for financial aid has just been issued by the Boston Association for the Relief and Control of Tuberculosis, which now has a list of 113 men, women and children upon its books.

Seventy-five of these patients are now snacing in the benefit of the day camp at Mattapan.

At least $5,000 is needed with which to carry the work until November 1, and the public is invited to send contributions to the treasurer of the finance committee, George S. Mumford, of No. 50 State street, Boston.

$5 GOLD PIECE STILL UNFOUND

One of the $5 gold pieces of the $200 in gold hidden in Wonderland and about Revere Beach last Sunday by the SUNDAY AMERICAN has not yet been found.

Says He Was Forced from Home Because He Sought More Pay

SUIT IS BROUGHT BY HEALD BECAUSE OF ACTION OF MILLMEN'S CLUB.

Refused work in Massachusetts because he and several other workmen employed in the woodworking shop of Frank M. Lucas struck for an increase of pay, John Heald, Jr., a wood molder of West Newton is an exile in a Connecticut town.

He is exiled through the efforts of the Boston Millmen's Club, which says that if he will not work in the Lucas mill he cannot work anywhere in Massachusetts at his trade. Heald and his thirty fellow-employes demanded the increase because they could barely exist in the face of the increased cost of necessities on what they were paid.

To test the rights of the Millmen's Club to establish a blacklist and force him to remain away from his home, his wife and his five children, so that he can earn money to support them, Heald has joined with other blacklisted men and Carpenters' District Council, branch 670, in a suit against the club.

The suit has been brought in the Superior Court, and Judge Keenedan has issued an order of notice returnable on Friday.

A Broken-Hearted Wife.

Broken-hearted because the blacklist keeps a kind and loving husband and father away from his home, Mrs. Heald prays night and day in her West Newton home that he will soon return.

"We do so wish that this strike should be settled," said Mrs. Heald to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter. Her face was sad, and tears came into her eyes as she looked at the little one clinging to her.

"The union ordered my husband out, and he had to go. He had been at work for the firm for twenty-two years, and Frank Lucas thought a lot of him, and the men thought a lot of Mr. Lucas also. All the men raised him. Frank's father, too, was good, and they worked eight hours, but they felt that they should have an increase. Living prices are away ing all the time. I don't know anything about this "blacklist," but I know that my husband could not get work in the State and that he was forced to go to Connecticut. We want to have him back and working here. Then we will all be so happy. It is so strange to have him away.

Mr. Heald's family consists of his wife and five children, Isabel, Annie, Ralph, Edith and Baby Elsie.

Blacklisted Everywhere.

Heald and his associates were ordered on strike by the union on May 1, after the Lucas concern had refused to pay the new union scale of wages.

Vainly the striking workmen sought work in other shops. The first question put to them on seeking employment was, "Where did you work before?" When they told the truth the answer was, "We have to West Newton, to the Lucas shop; we can't do anything for you."

The existence of an association of employers was ascertained, and the union, under the direction of M. L. Chivers, business agent, is to have revealed the "blacklist" inquired into by the courts and the employers restrained from using it further.

The suit brought by Heald and the union is the first ever brought in the State to restrain an employer in the use of a "blacklist," and workers in varied trades are interested.

Finds Work at Last.

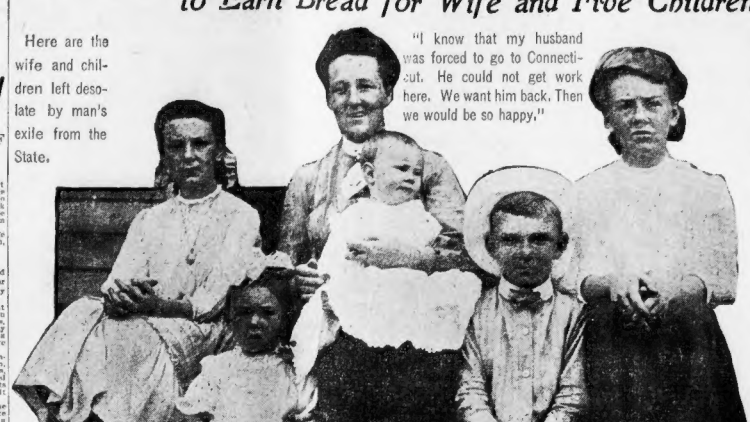
Heald secured employment last Tuesday in Connecticut, leaving his wife and five children in West Newton. At No. 55 Murray road, in a cozy home, the family longs for the homecoming of the father, for the time when in the city of his birth and where he has built a home he may pursue his accustomed trade.

The wood molders are skilled workmen and are well paid; and all of them, like Mr. Heald, have homes of their own. Mr. Heald was employed for nearly eight years in the Lucas shop, and all the strikers have long years of industrious service in the one shop to their credit.

Workman Declares He Was Exiled from State to Earn Bread for Wife and Five Children

Here are the wife and children left desolate by man's exile from the State.

"I know that my husband was forced to go to Connecticut. He could not get work here. We want him back. Then we would be so happy."



Wife and children of man barred from work in Massachusetts.

From left to right—Annie, 12 years; Edith, 2 years; Mrs. John Heald, Jr.; Elsie, 10 months; Ralph, 9 years; Isabelle, 14 years.

TERROR REIGNS AS 3 MADMEN FLEE ASYLUM

Rhode Island Farmers Form Posses to Search for Dangerous Insane.

BIG MYSTERY IN ESCAPE

PROVIDENCE, July 23.—A detail of Providence police, a dozen attendants from the State Hospital for the Insane at Howard, and an army of three hundred farmers from the Warwick and Cranston districts are scouring the woods near the latter places to-day in search of three former inmates of the hospital who are now at large.

The mysterious manner in which the men managed to evade the guards and get away without detection has made the situation still more serious, for it is not known how many others in the hospital may have the secret of the means of escape, and the utmost vigilance is being maintained to prevent a wholesale exodus from the place.

The first escape was effected five days ago, when Frank Weeden disappeared. Weeden is thought to have slipped through a wire screen in the rear of the asylum, but how he passed the guards is not known. He was committed to the asylum eight years ago after attempting to murder Miss Daisy F. Coulters of Auburn, who refused to marry him. Since then he recovered and is now a school teacher.

It was supposed that Weeden would be easily recaptured because of his prison clothes, but four days passed with no news of him, and then the hospital officials were startled yesterday to discover that two more escapes had been effected.

It was while most of the guards were at dinner that Thomas McGarrahan and Silton Cook, who occupied the same ward with Weeden, disappeared, and examination of the window, through which Weeden is supposed to have gotten out, showed that it had again been tampered with. There are heavy woods in the rear of the asylum, and the runaways had a good start.

McGarrahan, because suddenly insane a year ago and attempted to kill his wife and two children. Cook was adjudged insane six years ago and sent to the Westborough, Mass., asylum, later transferred to Howard, which is six miles from this city.

GIRL IS SHOT DEAD; MURDERER ESCAPES

Many times he waited for her as she went to or from work and tried to engage her in conversation.

A few days ago she threatened his arrest for persistently following her.

Man Concealed in Doorway.

Warner concealed himself in the doorway of White's store to-day a few minutes before it was time for Miss Noring to appear, and as she came he jumped out on her. She screamed and ran to the corner of Fifth avenue. He pursued her, and as the corner grabbed her by the arm with both hands, turned her about and then sent three bullets into her body.

As she fell to the sidewalk Warner turned and ran back through Forty-second street. At the time hundreds of men and women were pouring into the streets to and from the Grand Central station, and the great stores, office buildings and hotels in the vicinity. Warner held his gun at arm's length, threatening to shoot anyone who interfered, and he was given a clear passage by the frightened people.

But on the crossing at Fifth avenue were Patrolman Smith and O'Leary, and as he shot the young woman they started in pursuit of him. When he saw the officers following he started into the sporting goods store of John H. Spalding Brother, No. 31 West Forty-second street, where a porter was cleaning the windows. Bowling the porter over, Warner dashed up stairs with remarkable agility for an aged man. When the police came up the frightened porter pointed out Miss Noring and the officers started to mount. They were suddenly stopped by the appearance of Warner at the top of the stairs.

Without a word he fired twice at the policemen. One bullet tore Patrolman Walsh's helmet from his head, and the officers retreated and hid behind a counter. Then one went for reinforcements. This interval gave Warner his opportunity to escape.

Great Crowd Gathers.

A great crowd gathered outside the store, and when the first additional policemen arrived, about two of them, a search of the store was made. But Warner had flown. Going to the third floor he found a window on the western side of the building near the rear opening into a fire escape. Descending this fire escape to the first floor he was within six feet of the fence which separated the Spalding building from the back yard of the motor repairing shop at 38 West Forty-third street. Dropping to this fence he hopped down into the yard and then went through the shop and out into Forty-third street. As he passed through the shop he was seen by Robert Rayment, a machinist of No. 780 Forest avenue, who was at work at a lathe. As there had been firemen in the building practicing with the fire escapes, Rayment paid no attention to Warner, regarding him as one of the firemen.

Warner crossed Forty-third street and ran to Fifth avenue, where he boarded a northbound car. He was arrested on the car at Forty-fifth street by Detective Sergeant Titus, who had been informed by telephone of the shooting.

Titus found Warner sitting on the front platform of the car, and as he approached him Warner drew a revolver and fired at him, but missed. Titus then struck Warner on the head with his club, and the fugitive fell to the floor of the car. Titus then took the revolver away from him and placed him under arrest.

Warner was taken to the Tombs Police Court, where he was arraigned before Magistrate Barlow. He refused to make any statement, and was remanded to the Tombs.

Miss Noring was taken to the Presbyterian Hospital, where she died at 1 o'clock this morning.

Police Reserves Called.

Before this discovery was made the police reserves had been called from two stations, and as it was believed that Warner was still in the Spalding building or in the block across the street the block was completely surrounded. The reserves from other stations were called to the scene with people in search of Warner.

A. B. Spicer, manager for William G. Rea, told the police that Warner had tried to shoot him when he ran down the street.

"I had just opened the store," he said, "and had entered when I heard the shooting. I ran out and saw that Warner had shot Miss Noring. Seeing me, Warner turned on me and fired at me three times, and then ran west. He had been annoying Miss Noring for a long time. I carried her into the store, where she died."

Warner is said to have been driven out of the hat manufacturing establishment of Forty-second street where the subway was built. It was when he fired that William G. White stepped in and at a sheriff's sale bought the place and made a bachelor's den of it. He retained Miss Noring as cashier. Warner had been almost destitute recently, and had complained to his friends of the injustice he had suffered at the hands of the city and the subway builders. He sued, but lost, and that seemed to have unbalanced him.

In his escape down Forty-second street before he ran into the Spalding store a messenger boy threw a brick at Warner, and he fired a shot at the lad but did not hit him.

Walked Quietly Away.

The police learned later that the fugitive walked quietly west on Forty-third street after leaving the garage, came to the Times square and then took an up-town subway train.

So great was the crowd on the last trail that police reserves from several stations were called out and made a thorough search with drawn clubs.

Miss Noring lived through Forty-second street and Forty-third street and Fifth and Sixth avenues in quest of the man who killed Miss Noring, and it was more than an hour before order was restored and street traffic resumed.

113 LOST, LATEST FIGURES IN PACIFIC SEA HORROR

"GOD SAVE YOU ALL!" SHOUTS CAPTAIN DORAN IN DROWNING.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23.—The number of lives lost by the sinking of the coast liner Columbia off Shelter Shoals is now placed at 113. Of this number ninety-four were passengers and nineteen members of the crew. It is possible that some of those now believed to have been lost have been picked up by other craft and may be accounted for later, but the officers of the company fear that the ground for such hope is slight. Eighty-eight of the passengers and thirty-eight of the crew are known to have been saved, and their names are given out by the officials of the steamship company.

Many of the survivors, absolutely destitute and in their nightclothes, were brought into Eureka, where they are being cared for.

The officers of the doomed steamer did all in their power to save the passengers, but as only eleven minutes elapsed from the time that the San Pedro crashed into the Columbia before the big passenger boat went down, very little could be done.

Captain Doran and Chief Officer [illegible] ney, after doing all possible to stay the panic among the passengers and get them off the sinking ship, made no effort to save themselves. As the waves which engulfed them washed over the bridge, Captain Doran was heard to shout: "God save you all!"

There were many acts of heroism reported both by members of the crew and passengers.

Here is a partial list of those who were drowned:

E. O. Liggett, Lewis Malkus and wife, Florence Lewis, Franklin Antil, M. H. Maidlin, A. Schotter, H. L. Keever, John D. McFayden, C. Smith, Mrs. H. F. Whites, Sarah Reibull, Mrs. K. FAMOUS COTTAGE SOLD.

EAST HAMPTON, L. I., July 23.—The John Howard Payne cottage, called "Home, Sweet Home" because it was there that the song of that name was written, has been sold, together with a small section of the farm, to G. H. Bock of Brooklyn.

SALTON DAM COMPLETE.

IMPERIAL, Cal., July 23.—The salton sea dam, which E. H. Harriman, president of the Southern Pacific, undertook to perform to control the Colorado River at the request of President Roosevelt, is complete. The Southern Pacific has furnished nearly $1,000,000 for the work.

RICH MAN VICTIM OF BOSTON PLOT

they wrote to Tavshanjian and told him what was going on. Then, they stated, Apigzian Ounjian, was to be assassinated. Tavshanjian should wait and see. What happened his friend should happen to him if he did not give us money.

"Tavshanjian is a friend of the Sultan. At first he was a revolutionist, but he turned. So now the first thing he did when his friend was killed was to tell the Sultan's police who did it. They caught Vartanian and sentenced him to death. He is awaiting the sword now.

"Knowing all this, I made up my mind to kill him."

Like "Black Hand" Society.

The police, who have learned to look upon the secret Hunchaklist as similar to the "Black Hand," and who have been told that Bedros is really a fanatic on the subject of freeing his country from Turkish rule, and that he has been used as a tool of blackmailing methods practiced in the name of the revolutionary society, think by some of the unscrupulous leaders of the organization who have resorted to many assassinations in the last two years when their demands for money "for the cause" were not complied with.

They connect the assassination of Mr. Tavshanjian with the murder of Father Kaspar Vartanian, whose body was found in a trunk on the West Side two months ago. Vartanian, as well as Archbishop Horsep Sarajdian of the West Hoboken church, who befriended him, was outspoken in his denunciations of the blackmailing Hunchaklist.

Mr. Tavshanjian was a leading member of the church and its most generous supporter. He aided the police all he could in tracing the priest's murderers.

District-Attorney Jerome and Detective Chief McCafferty have known for many weeks of threats against the life of Mr. Tavshanjian which only became public after his murder yesterday. Not only the importer who was killed, but three other wealthy rug importers of this city, received letters a year and a half ago demanding that each pay $25,000 to the treasury of the Hunchaklist. The letters came from abroad, and they stated that some man should call for the money.

RUSSIANS PLAN TO MEET IN FINLAND

ST. PETERSBURG, July 13.—Although the Constitutional Democratic congress, planned here, has been forbidden by General Drachelbski, prefect of St. Petersburg, the Constitutional Democrats hope to hold the congress in Finland early in September. If the Finnish authorities refuse permission, it will be held in Sweden.

AMERICANS HELD AS COUNTERFEITERS

BILBOA, Spain, July 23.—Charles Durpitt and Anna Hoffen, Americans, are under arrest here, charged with passing counterfeit money. When searched $50,000 in spurious bank notes were found in Durpitt's pockets.

CHEMIKERS IN BERLIN HOCH FOR HARVARD

BERLIN, July 23.—Two hundred students of the University of Berlin gave Theodore W. Richards, professor of chemistry at Harvard University, the surprise of his life on Saturday. The chemical department of the University of Berlin had tendered him a picnic at Muggel Lake.

Professor Richards had just finished his dish of sauerkraut and wurst, washed down with a draught of the famous water of Muggel Lake when one of the German professors suggested a handkerchief-less trip on the lake. Unsuspectingly the American accepted the invitation, followed by the whole body of students.

A little way out on the lake the professor shouted:

"Hoch der grosser chemiker!"

Immediately came the response from two hundred throats:

Hoch hoch hoch
Hoch hoch hoch
Hoch hoch hoch
Hoch der Amerikaner!

Following it up immediately with: "Far Harvard the kinder to the jubilee gesahlt and with hearings surrounded."

Professor Richards was overcome.

GIRL TRIES TO KILL HERSELF; MAN ARRESTED

NEW YORK, July 23.—Nellis Geddes, a beautiful girl with Titian hair, eighteen years old, daughter of a wealthy retired manufacturer of Passaic, N. J., tried to commit suicide to-day in a furnished room at No. 47 Meeker avenue, Williamsburg, by drinking carbolic acid.

A well dressed young man, who gave his name as William Mascott, twenty-three years old, rushed into the Bedford street police station and called to Lieutenant Shoey:

"For God's sake send a doctor to No. 47 Meeker avenue. A girl in there tried to kill herself."

Dr. Heuit, the ambulance surgeon, found that other inmates of the house had saved the girl's life by forcing her to drink milk, and she was out of danger.

Mascott admitted that he lived at No. 937 South Main street, Waterbury, Ct., and said he met the girl in Waterbury a month ago. They eloped, he said, and he was prevented from marrying her by his circumstances.

The pretty girl told a pathetic story when the police questioned her.

"I met Gus in Bridgeport," she said, referring to the young man, "and he persuaded me to elope with him. He promised to marry me at once, but he brought me here and did not marry me. He came to see me this morning, and I was so disheartened that when he said he could not marry me and save me and my family from disgrace that I tried to kill myself. I drank a little of the acid, when he dashed it from my lips and ran out to give the alarm."

Mascott was held on a technical charge of vagrancy. The girl was charged with attempted suicide.

HOT TO-DAY UNTIL STORM BRINGS RELIEF

Sticky weather to-day with thunder storm threatened.

That is the gist of the weather prospect, as indicated by the following forecast:

"Probably showers and thunder storm this afternoon or to-night." Wednesday, fair. Light westerly winds.

The humidity was 75 per cent. at 10 a. m., which is 5 per cent. above normal. The prospect is for an increase in humidity with the approach of the storm this evening. This means that it will get more and more sticky as the day wears along till the humidity breaks into rain.

The temperature was 70 degrees above at 6 a. m. to-day, rising to 81 degrees at 10 a. m. It is not likely that the mercury will better the 85-degree mark.

Whirled About by Millionaires in Fitchburg Autos

MEN SECURED TO TAKE MACHINISTS' PLACE FED BY FRENCH CHEF.

FITCHBURG, July 23.—Two things that never happened in professional strike-breakers before have dazzled the men brought here to break the strike of machinists which started two weeks ago yesterday, when three hundred men quit work in eight shops.

They are quartered in a $50,000 clubhouse.

They are driven to and from their work in automobiles with their millionaire employers acting as chauffeurs.

And the strike-breakers, some sixty odd in number, at the latest reports of pickets, are mostly of foreign born population. Some of them never rode in an automobile before. Hardly one of them ever saw the inside of as magnificent a place as the clubhouse once occupied by the exclusive Fitchburg Athletic Association.

In the clubhouse they have bowling alleys and billiard and pool tables.

A Chef and Clerk.

The cook is called a chef. As good a young chap as ever wielded a pen hands out their meal tickets. Even the large sized guards who are detailed to watch the strike-breakers and see that no harm comes to them, have been known to speak kindly at times. Few of the imported gentlemen could understand what it all meant when they arrived and a few, more suspicious than the rest, deserted on the spot. Fearing there was some underhand business going on.

Rather than grant their old employes a nine hour day and an increase of one cent an hour in wages, the members of the Metal Trades Association have laid all these magnificent plans to quarter three hundred imported laborers in the city. At the first suggestion from the Fitchburg Machinists' Union that shorter hours and more pay were desired, the employers made ready.

"We will grant no more concessions; we have given enough," they said and sent for Donald Tulloch, the secretary, to get busy and hire men.

"I'll have to have a place to quarter them," said Tulloch.

"Get the old Fitchburg Athletic clubhouse on Wallace avenue," was suggested.

It was easy to get. There is a mortgage on the place of $15,000 that no one seems willing to take up, and the man that holds the mortgage was willing to do anything to get some money out of it. The club house was built in 1895, is a brick structure, cost a small fortune and for a time was the rendezvous of the wealthiest men of Fitchburg. For some reason or other the membership fell off and finally the mortgagee took possession.

Palatial Quarters.

It is a finely appointed place. There are large sized reception rooms, smaller billiard and pool rooms, card rooms, a kitchen that only needed gas ranges to be ready for business and a roof garden.

Then came the question of transportation. C. F. Putnam of the Putnam Machine Company, announced himself not only as ready to use his automobile but also to act as chauffeur. The Simonds, the Bath Grinder Company and Charles Fredrick of the Fitchburg Steam Engine Works followed suit.

Tulloch sent out to get his men. Where he got them only Tulloch knows and he won't tell. It is commented upon very freely at the strike headquarters, No. 155 Main street, that the foremen weren't all pleased with the selections made by Tulloch.

"I've got enough shoemakers and plumbers' helpers," one foreman is credited with having said to Tulloch. "Can't you get me a couple of machinists?"

Burly Guards on Duty.

The strike-breakers commenced to arrive last Saturday and more arrived yesterday. Burly guards got into Mr. Putnam's high power touring car and rode with him to the station. There they met the frightened looking men who got off the train and took them aboard. A few got frightened at the automobile and were willingly escorted to strike headquarters and sent back to Boston.

Mr. Putnam guided his charges to their palatial quarters on Wallace avenue. Cots beds were ready for them. Food was in with glee.

All of the cots are on the first floor because the State police have told the Metal Trades here that they could use the house as a lodging place until fire escapes have been placed on the building and a few other State laws complied with.

"We are prepared for three hundred," said Mr. Tulloch to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter. "When we want them we can get them. The Metal Trades Association means business. It is about time that the machinists found it out."

Despite the clubhouse and the automobiles with millionaires as chauffeurs, the strikers are taking things philosophically. "When such men as Archibald McCord stand back of us," said Secretary William F. Ryan, "I don't believe that our union needs to worry about public sentiment."

It is a model strike. Save for the crowds that gather at the depot watching for strike-breakers and the presence of the guards one would never know that an industrial struggle was in progress in the city.

COREY FACES MINERS' STRIKE

NEW YORK, July 23.—W. E. Corey, president of the United States Steel Corporation, who returned from Europe Saturday, is likely to be very busy for some time, for on his desk is a notice from the special committee of the Minnesota District Union, No. 11, of the Western Federation of Miners that, unless their demands for increased wages are complied with by July 29, all of the employes and miners of the Oliver Iron Mining Company, which operates the big ore properties of the corporation in the Northwest, will strike.

Mr. Corey called into consultation George W. Perkins, acting chairman of the board of directors; Norman S. Bonn, President Dinkey of the Carnegie Steel Company and Francis Lynde Stetson, general counsel of the company.

More than 15,000 men are employed at the mines.

TAKE GIRL LEPER FROM RICH BROOKLINE HOME

PLAGUE-STRICKEN WOMAN IN MASSACHUSETTS GENERAL HOSPITAL.

The unusual and startling discovery was made at the Massachusetts General Hospital late yesterday that a young woman employed for months among the wealthy residents of Brookline was a victim of leprosy, the incurable scourge of the Orient.

The young woman's name has not yet been disclosed, and every effort has been made to keep the circumstances secret. She is now in charge of the Boston Board of Health, having been removed to an isolated building at the City Hospital. The State Board of Health has been notified, and rumors announce that she will be removed to-morrow to Penikese Island, the state leper colony, off the coast near New Bedford.

The leprosy diagnosis, made only yesterday, is in the case of a patient who has been under the eyes of the physicians at the Massachusetts General Hospital for about four months, yet the symptoms of the disease were not sufficiently marked to cause detection.

Though the attendants at the latter hospital and at the city institution are non-committal in regard to the case, Dr. Samuel H. Durgin, chairman of the City Board of Health, to-day confirmed the statement that the young woman has leprosy.

To a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter Dr. Durgin, when seen at his home, No. 843 Boylston street, said that he had not ascertained the patient's name, but that he believed she was a domestic employed by a prominent family in Brookline. He said she had been an out-patient at the Massachusetts General for about a year, under treatment for a skin disease.

On Saturday, said the doctor, the young woman, who is about thirty years of age, called at the hospital, and came again yesterday. The physicians in charge of the clinic, on discovering the skin, on closer examination pronounced hers a case of leprosy.

The Boston Board of Health was notified and Dr. Durgin, the health officer, called at the hospital, both confirming the diagnosis.

State Board Notified.

The State Board was then informed of the case, and under the jurisdiction of the city authorities the woman was transferred to an outside ward at the City Hospital where she will remain until action today by the State Board of Health.

The finding of this case of leprosy in the limits of Greater Boston only adds to the tension among medical men caused by the discovery of five other cases of the same terrible scourge within twelve months in and about the city—two Chinese, two Portuguese men and one woman of the same nationality, Mrs. Isabelle Barros. All these cases are now cared for at the new leper colony established by the State on Penikese Island.

5 LEPROSY CASES ARE UNDER STATE CARE; ONE THAT OF WOMAN

There are but five other known cases of leprosy under treatment in Massachusetts at present. These are at Penikese Island, off the coast of New Bedford. Two are Chinamen and three are Portuguese, one of the latter being a woman, Mrs. Isabelle Barros, whose case is probably the most famous in the history of the State. She is the only woman hitherto found to have the disease in Massachusetts.

Mrs. Barros lived with her husband, Napoleon Barbosa Barros, at "squaw Rock," on Buzzards Bay, when April, 1905, sent to St. Luke's Hospital, New Bedford, to be treated for rheumatism, physicians were puzzled by certain features of her illness, examined cultures from her throat and pronounced her a leper.

Dr. J. W. Procter of this city, expert for the State Board of Charity, and other physicians confirmed his diagnosis, and Mrs. Barros was removed to the house, situated a quarter of a mile from any other house, and quarantined, with the members of her family.

'PRIVATE' VIEW TOMORROW OF 'PHONE GRAFT

Reinforced by such information as the commission has allowed him to have a glimpse at, "privately," Attorney E. A. Whitman of Elder & Whitman will tomorrow resume his endeavors to get for the public some interesting facts about telephone graft in Boston. Appearing for the Boston Post before the Highway Commission on a petition for the reduction of telephone rates in the Metropolitan district, Mr. Whitman has for weeks been vainly endeavoring to show what unlawful gains have been made of the money paid into the New England telephone trust by telephone subscribers.

At the "public" hearing little has as yet been publicly uncovered. Chairman William E. McClintock, who comes from Chelsea, has ruled that the Telephone Trust need not say how much it has subscribed to political campaign funds. McClintock decided that, inasmuch as the telephone matter did not come to his commission until one year ago, it is immaterial how much the company gave up prior to that time. There has been no national campaign since 1904.

Forced "Public" Hearing.

The Highway Commission, composed of McClintock, Harold Parker of Lancaster, brother of the former Attorney-General, and John H. Manning of Pittsfield, for a long time maintained that there was no occasion for a "public" hearing. A public hearing being forced upon it, the commission has ruled that the graft evidence need be shown only to counsel and must not be made public.

These are some of the things that Lawyer Whitman wants to know and which, with the permission of the Highway Commission, forced by progressive Powers, counsel for the Telephone Trust, has agreed to let him have a glimpse at privately:

The list of free telephones.

The list of "trust holders," who send long-distance messages "D. H." (the private wire) "the other way."

Salaries of seventeen general officers who get $50,000 or more a year in England, with a statement of the sums they draw from the subsidiary owned by the New England or allied with it.

Retainers to Democratic newspapers.

The long list of legal talent, and "retainers" of the John H. Wardwell law firm, which represented Democratic leader of the Brighton (Ward 25) district employed by the corporation over $. K. Hall says, "to look out for things at City Hall."

THIEVES EQUAL IN LAW'S EYES

—JUDGE PESSENDEN

"I have just had before me the case of a young Italian boy charged with stealing some pistols. Now, I want to ask you, what would the public think if I should deal more leniently with a man whose opportunities and education were vastly greater, but whose acts are far more flagrant? These two defendants are equal before the law."

Judge Pessenden from the bench of the Superior Criminal Court, when there came before him for disposition the case of John H. Henderson, a former broker, who had pleaded guilty to the larceny of about 12,000 from one Mary McGillvery of Roxbury, declared in scathing terms that one defendant was as much of a law breaker as the other.

The case went over until to-day.

MARK TWAIN IMPORTS ENGLISH JOKE DIAGRAM

HUMORIST BACK HOME, SAYS HE DIDN'T STEAL DUBLIN JEWELS, BUT HAS ASCOT CUP

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, July 23.—Dr. Mark Twain returned from England yesterday on the Atlantic Transport Liner Minnetonka, high browed under the degree of doctor of letters, which he received from Oxford University, and which he declared was no joke.

He cautiously admitted that he still had the famous King's Ascot Cup, which vanished from an English hotel, but jibed at the London police.

He denied any knowledge of the stolen jewels, declaring that some one else had turned the Irish trick.

A search of the humorist's luggage at the pier supported his statement about the jewels. The customs officers found no false bottoms in his trunk although they struck a suitable gold mine of notes on English jokes, which Mr. Clemens has translated and diagrammed to spring at his own.

Gaudy Imitation.

The customs officers did find an Ascot Cup, but they did not lock it up. It went to the appraisers to discover that it was not the valuable one King Edward held as a track prize. It was a gaudy imitation presented to him by the Savage Club.

The AMERICAN reporter who boarded the Minnetonka at quarantine found the humorist in one of his famous white suits, sprawled on a steamer chair, gazing at the Staten Island shore.

"I was looking for the first mosquito," he joked. "Not one to welcome me."

"What do you think of America?" was the first question.

"Ask my keeper," said Mark Twain, indicating Miss Isabel Lyon, old Dorothy Quick, of Plainfield, N. J., who adopted her distinguished fellow countryman first afternoon out and guarded him closely during the voyage. She sat in his lap and leaned her head trustfully against his shoulder. "You can tell them,' she consented, patting his cheek by way of encouragement.

Gets 30 Cents a Word.

"How do I like America?" repeated the humorist. "I don't know. I've been away six weeks. Now ask me what I think of the tall buildings."

"Suppose you tell us your latest joke instead," was suggested.

"I get thirty cents a word," he returned.

"Tell us one at night rates," was offered.

"No night rates on my jokes or cut rates either," said Mark Twain sagely. "It's thirty the word."

The fifteen reporters made a pool, raising ninety cents. They offered it for a three word joke. Mark Twain delivered the goods promptly:

"Hist! I've got the Ascot Cup."

That was rejected because it was an old joke and has more than three words.

Couldn't Buy Windsor.

"I met King Edward, all right," said Mr. Clemens. "He adopted it. But he wouldn't sell me Windsor. Fine place, that castle. Better than the bungalow I've been paying rent on out at Tuxedo. 'I'm going out there now, but I've been away so long I'll have to sit up nights to get even with the rent.'

King Edward took the joke a rippling joke, he said, a regular twister—but unfortunately he is saving it for thirty cents a word. It was a long joke, and he didn't think the reporters could buy it.

"Shocking nothing," he said, shaking his shaggy white head. "That was one of the privileges granted to one in his special calidness. Accumulated privileges form the chief advantage of old age. I'm seventy-two by the calendar, but A. D. I feel every year of it, but at eight in the morning when I'm shaving I feel twenty-five.

PIANO COMEDY BIG NOVELTY AT KEITH'S

May Mooney, Boston Girl, Makes Success in Vaudeville.

"Snap," "Go" and "Ginger" are features of the vaudeville show at Keith's this week, the bill being headed by a spectacular act called "The Delightfuls," a miniature musical comedy, in which are nine people. A feature of this act is the playing of five pianos at one time. May Mooney, a Boston girl, makes her first dash into vaudeville and is a big success. Her voice is an unusual contralto. Rich, clear and sweet, and she sings as though she loved to sing. She made a great hit with the audience. A trick dog, "Wise Mike," was one of the big acts, and the laughing hit of the bill was Phil and Nettie Peters, who laughed at themselves and themselves that they and every one else doubled up. Marimba and Mandolin, Georgia wizards; Davis and Walker, ragtimers; Cornalia and Eddie, acrobats; Mai Keefe and Tony Pearl, the rodier and the harpist; Raymond and Caverly, Gorgeous jokists. Kaufman brothers and Allen, Delphia and Allen and Allen, comedians, are also in the bill.

The artistic feature is "A Night with the Poets," presided over by George Homans and a large cast of people.

MISS TERRY MAKES STAGE DEBUT HERE

Miss Ethel Grey Terry, daughter of Lillian Lawrence, made her Boston debut as an actress on the stage of the Park Theatre last night, playing the role of Lettice Vane in "As a Man Sows," a strong drama. Every seat in the house was occupied, and hundreds stood. At the close of the second act the stage resembled a conservatory, so numerous were the floral gifts to Miss Terry and also to Gertrude Binley and little Doris Miller, daughter of Charles Miller, the leading man of the company. Miss Binley and little Doris made their first appearances with the company last night.

Miss Terry proves to have inherited not only the beauty, but the unusual talent of her mother. Her acting is full of strength, she speaks easily and will prove a valuable acquisition to the cast. Little Doris made a delightful "Cupid."

THOUSANDS OF CATHOLICS WILL PARADE

That the Catholic contingent of social, temperance, benevolent and fraternal organizations will be well represented in the Old Home Week parade on Wednesday, July 31, is amply attested by the keen interest manifested by members. Meetings are being held and preparations are rapidly all working energetically.

The military branch of the Ancient Order of Hibernians will turn out in large numbers and will be under the command of County President John H. Dillon. Nightly drills are being held by subordinate companies of the First Hibernian Regiment and by the time the parade is held it is confidently expected by Colonel John O'Leary of the regiment that the men under his command will be in the best of conditions and out in good numbers to add an attractive feature to the pageant.

Major John J. Leonard, who is high secretary and treasurer of the Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters, expects that over 9,000 Foresters will be in line. At a recent meeting of the delegates of the order it was planned to have each subordinate branch mobilize every past and present member for the parade. Supper will be held by nearly all of the local courts this week to make final arrangements.

ASKS HILL TO ACCOUNT FOR $10,000,000

MINNEAPOLIS, July 23.—James J. Hill has been asked to account for $10,000,000, which he, according to a complaint, "illegally and fraudulently acquired," in connection with a deal in connection by which the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific railways secured control of the Burlington railroad on April 20, 1901. The complaint was filed in the Ramsey county court at St. Paul yesterday afternoon. Clarence Vennes of New York is the plaintiff.

MONUMENT TO LEO UNVEILED IN ROME

ROME, July 23.—The monument to Pope Leo XIII. was unveiled yesterday, the members of the Lateran Chapter and Sacred College being present. The sculptor, Tadolini, explained his conception of the work, which, he declared, was a labor of love, and formally completed the monument to a commission of cardinals.

THEATRES PREPARE FOR OPENINGS

The Grand Opera House opens its season on Saturday evening of this week, with A. H. Woods' newest melodramatic production entitled, "Cowlet 999," described as the epitome of modern sensation. The story unfolds itself in New York city and its vicinity and deals with the startling episodes which occur in the life of a smaly young national gentleman. The box office opens Thursday morning for the sale of seats.

The sale of seats for Bonita and the "Wine, Woman and Song" company will open at the Globe Theatre on tomorrow morning. This breezy musical comedy will open the season on Saturday night, July 27, and continue for three weeks.

This is the last week of rehearsals of "The Green Bird" and next Monday evening the new D. K. Stevens and John A. Bennett musical comedy will be given for the first time on any stage at the Majestic Theatre. Although the piece was written by a Boston man and is backed by Boston capital, it is a thoroughly New York production.

HANSEL TO PLAY.

Additional interest attaches to the performance of "The Lost Paradise" at the Castle Square Theatre next Friday afternoon in aid of the Animal Rescue League, from the fact that Howell Hansel makes his first appearance as Reuben Warner on this occasion.

Austin & Stone's Museum.

Austin & Stone's Old Home Week program, inaugurated this week, is a reflective drama of the genuine old-fashioned museum show, which Barnum gave to the world years ago and which delighted our fathers and grandfathers. There is everything curious, freakish and abnormal. Colored White babies, weeks setting this great aggregation together and how both his thousands of friends to come and witness his triumph. Special Old Maids are doing great stunts this week, and there are several additions to the menagerie.

Bowdoin Square Theatre

At the Bowdoin Square Theatre, two large audiences enjoyed "The Slaves of Russia" yesterday. Expectation was apparent and was relieved by the first appearance of the new leading man, Clayton Legge, as the hero Ivan Petrovich. He was greeted with great applause. Another new artist to this company is Miss June Stuart, who at once gained popularity. Both these two new people were excellent. Will Walter was an unusually good Orlof.

MANY CHANGES IN "HURDY GURDY GIRL"

"The Hurdy Gurdy Girl" began its eighth week at the Tremont last night, a second edition being presented on the same time. The first act is now divided into two scenes, the first being the office of a hotel and the second the Plaza dance room, which previously has been on view for the whole act.

Two new musical numbers are introduced in the opening scene. The most important changes, however, are in the cast. John W. Ransom of "Prince of Pilsen" fame, received a warm welcome as the Sausage King, giving the part distinction with his German dialect. Miss Diamond Donner is now the ingenue and Miss Maym Kelso is Mrs. Van Coover.

OLD HOME WEEK BILL AT PALACE THEATRE

"Charlie" Waldron is determined that the old home of burlesque, the Palace Theatre, will have an Old Home Week entertainment, which will delight all returning Boston sons. The stock company never appeared to better advantage and the olio presents one of Boston's greatest celebrities, Miss Bothwell Browne, who will be remembered by many Old Home Week visitors. Ada Gedlik, Arthur Anderson and Golnes, versatile artists, and Gardner, a wonderful bounding wire performer.

MOVING PICTURES AT HUB THEATRE

As to moving pictures, tenure of popularity is a divergence of opinion, but as long as the programs can be kept up to the standard maintained by Miles Brothers at the Hub Theatre, there can be little doubt that they will live forever. Comedy constitutes the show in the most part, for four out of the five numbers are humorous and amusing, namely "Beautiful Boris Godunoff," "Mother Kelly's Doings," "The Footman," "Hobo Hero," "Father's Quiet Sunday."

OUTDOOR PLEASURES.

Wonderland

The management at Wonderland, New England's greatest park, at Revere Beach, is confident that last season's brilliant record of over two million visitors will be easily beaten this year. It has been near, ly reached already, and the season has many weeks yet to run. The free circus bill is particularly strong this week. James E. Hasty, high wire king, gives two performances daily. Another feature is the equestrian act of Ross, Wentworth and Laurie trio, acrobatic act and Teel's The Laurent trio, acrobatic act, and Teel's National Lancer Band supply other attractive features of Wonderland's big programme.

Paragon Park, Nantasket

The phenomenal success of Paragon Park this Summer is attributed by Manager George A. Dodge, to two things—first to the arrangement of the park itself, the "Nile" idea it might be called, and second to the great list of free attractions. This week Speedy, champion high diver of the world, is daring death twice every day. The Norins are also on the bill, and a distinct new ty le Don Pedro tower by his toes.

Norumbega Park

Norumbega Park is having record-breaking attendances these days. No season in its history has shown such patronage for July and June. The vaudeville programme this week gives eminent satisfaction. The Solaret Family, acrobatic novelty, is this year more delightful than ever. A gymnastic act is given by the MacBaus. Amann and Hartley, "Mr. and Mrs. Jarr" Wentworth and Vesta, comedy acrobats, and the Dixie Serenaders, colored singers, dancers and comedians, complete the list.

Bass Point Trips

Never in the history of Bass Point has there been such a steady influx of daily excursionists to this popular shore resort compared with the present season. The new location of the Bass Point line in Boston (Otis wharf, No. 408 Atlantic avenue, one south of Rowe's wharf Elevated station) is far more accessible than the old location.

Deep-Sea Fishing

More people than ever are tempting the biggest sizes of cod and haddock to come up and bite the bait furnished free to all purchasers of round trip tickets down to the deep sea grounds off Provincetown by King Phillip. Lines and chowder are also furnished free by the management. The boat starts from Commercial Wharf daily and Sunday at 10 a. m.

Determination and Perseverance Are Sure Love Charms

By Beatrice Fairfax

HAVE you ever tried to win the affection of a person who disliked you? it is uphill work, but in nine cases out of ten it can be done if you try hard enough.

But to win the liking of a person who is coldly indifferent to you is a different matter. The person who hates you has you in his thoughts almost as often as though he loved you, but there is nothing in you that arouses sentiment of any kind in the person who is indifferent to you.

If you are determined to win the admiration of some one who dislikes you, it stands to reason that you will spare no effort to please.

You will show yourself in your very best light and will seek to draw out all that is best in the person whose regard you are striving for.

Not long ago I met a woman who I could feel took an instantaneous dislike to me. There was no especial reason why she should feel that way, and as I, like most people, like to be liked I determined that I would make her like me.

It Takes Time

It took a good while, but I did win that woman's friendship, and I think we will always be the very best of friends.

Many a man has fallen in love with a woman whom he hated in the first place.

And many a woman has deliberately set out to win the love of a man handicapped by the fact that he actually disliked her. As a rule, she has won through striking repeatedly at that weakest spot in his armor—his vanity.

There is such a thing as a physical antipathy, and where a person feels that it is almost impossible to overcome it.

I know of a case where a man has been trying for years to win a woman's love. He has spared neither time, money nor kind attentions, and he is as far off to-day as he was in the beginning. "Why don't you like him," I asked her. "He's kind and most people find him delightful, he would make you a splendid husband."

"I know all that," she said, "but I dislike even shaking hands with him, there seems to be a sort of physical repulsion against being near him."

That sort of dislike can never be overcome.

Requires Tact

I do not think you can make a person like you by fulsome flattery and attention. It can only be done by steady kindness, courtesy and above all else tact.

And even then, if the hatred is for any special cause, it may be impossible to overcome it.

Indifference is a cold, sluggish feeling and it is hard to stir it to the warm temperature of love.

It is a very good thing to have to fight for love and admiration. It stirs us out of ourselves and makes us realize that we are not quite as invincible as we thought we were. A little wholesome dislike and disapprobation is good for every one.

If you hear that a person dislikes you, don't sit tamely down and say you don't care.

Make up your mind that you will make that person like you, and don't stop trying until you win.

Take a pride in showing that person that he was mistaken in his estimate of your character and that you are far nicer person than he gave you credit for being.

HAIR THAT PINS ON IS A BOON TO OUTDOOR GIRLS

FRONT VIEW OF WAVE

CLUSTER ARRANGEMENT

Fashion Approves the Ready-Made Coiffures

Most Popular Is Coils Called "Torsade"

WOMEN all over the world are crying out for beauty and doing all in their power to retain it, if they are so fortunate as to be endowed with it, or exerting every effort to obtain it, if nature has been niggardly with them in dispensing feminine charms.

While this is a fact, it is astonishing how very few, comparatively speaking, pay much attention to the study of the coiffure, one of the most necessary adjuncts to the toilet of the woman who would be beautiful.

The hair frames the face and according as it is arranged becomingly or unbecomingly careless so is the picture contained pretty or homely.

One of the prettiest up-to-date arrangements of the hair is shown in this illustration and is called the torsade. It is made to pin on, think of it, so that you can fit it yourself and then add its coils to suit the contour of your head. It consists of a coil of hair ending either side in bunches of curls.

TORSADE COIFFURE

All that is needed to make a charming and becoming coiffure is to arrange the hair prettily over the frame and then place the torsade in position, the coil lying around the crown of the head, with a smart comb in the centre, and the curls carried on to the top, where they fall all the requirements of the most exacting of Fashion's votaries.

The front view sketch gives the full face arrangement of the prettily waved tresses, with the puff showing only slightly above the centre parting.

The last sketch shows another arrangement. This is in the form of a large cluster, which is placed up the back of the coiffure, and lyes just that touch of smartness which is the natural ambition of the modern woman to attain.

These two styles in puff and braids are really marvels of lightness, and, moreover, there is nothing whatever to be done in arrangement beyond planting in place, as that when travelling or staying away, deprived of a maid's services, they are invaluable, while there is no possibility of trouble with the puff showing only slightly marring the appearance.

Therefore these coils come as a veritable boon and blessing when motoring or yachting.

HOW TO BE BEAUTIFUL

IT is quite possible that more harm arises from indiscretions in food than in drink. The evil results mean eating that is so common is undoubtedly one great factor in the production of so much rheumatism, headache, kidney trouble, etc., and though medicine, by relieving the system for a time of the accumulated poisons that have caused the trouble, will temporarily relieve, if the old dietetic habits are resumed suffering, of course, speedily returns to be again assuaged by medicine. But there comes a time when the best results cease to be prominent, and medicine becomes of no avail, for definite alterations have taken place in our organs, and for the rest of life the price has to be paid for past folly.

GOOD CURLING FLUID

DEAR PROFESSOR:

Will you please tell me some way to make a curling fluid from quince seeds that will keep for some time. I do not like to make it fresh so often.

M. C.

BOIL gently one tablespoon of quince seeds in a pint of distilled water until it is reduced one-half in quantity. Strain through cheesecloth and add one and one-half ounces each of alcohol and colonge. Dampen your hair with this liquid and do it up on patent curlers. When the hair is dry it will retain the curl for a long time.

DEVELOPS FOREARM

DEAR PROFESSOR:

Will you please tell me of some exercise to develop the forearm?

DAISY.

HOLDING the arms at full length either in front or at the sides, with the fingers clinched and turning the forearm to right and then to left as far as possible without moving the elbow, is one of the finest exercises you can find for developing the forearm. Also hold the arms at full length, close the hands tightly and then thrust the fingers open with all the power you can exert. Repeat this exercise twenty-five times as often during the day as you think of it and you will see results.

COLD WATER GINGER-BREAD

ONE cup of molasses, one teaspoon of soda, one tablespoon of cinnamon, one teaspoon of ginger, two tablespoons of melted lard, one cup of sugar, three cups of sifted flour. MISS LILLIAN FRASER, No. 17 Harvard street, Lowell.

PEACH SHORTCAKE

SIFT together two cups flour, four teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, one tablespoonful sugar.

Rub in one quarter cup of butter. Add gradually three-quarters of a cup of milk; roll out and bake in layer cake tins. In baking, split the cakes and spread with sliced peaches and sugar, cover top with sliced peaches and whipped cream sweetened and flavored with almond extract. Eaten at once.

MISS A. RUSSELL, No. 28 Portland street, Dorchester.

WHITE COCOANUT CAKE

ONE cup of butter, two cups of sugar, white of four eggs, one cup of sweet milk, three cups of flour, two teaspoons of baking powder. Flavor to taste. Bake this in three layers and make an icing of two cups of confectioner's sugar and about three tablespoons of sweet cream and a small pinch of salt. Put this between layers and on top and sprinkle with cocoanut. This never fails.

"A PRINCE OF SINNERS"

By E. Phillips Oppenheim, Author of "The Malefactor," Etc.

Synopsis

KINGSTON BROOKS, a young solicitor of Maidenhead, England, is selected, through the good offices of Peter Bullson, as political agent for the Radical candidate for Parliament. He is overjoyed at his luck. That night he dines at Bullson's house, meeting Bullson's daughter Mary, and Sonia Redfern, his daughter. He is much taken with Mary, but dislikes Sonia. The next day a strange caller tells him of the love affair between Mary Bullson and Lord Armsmoor, heir to the Marquis of Avonmore. Mr. Bullson, who was to get his support in Parliament, objects to Mary's party.

Mr. Bullson meets Kingston on the street, and dines with him. They discuss the problem of the Lord Armsmoor affair. Bullson tells Kingston his wife insists on Mary's marrying Lord Armsmoor, and glances at Mary. He thinks her face is familiar. Sol Cohen calls on Kingston on his party. Mary, Sonia and Kingston meet again at a political meeting. They discuss Lord Armsmoor. She says she dislikes him, although he has just given £1,000 to Kingston's campaign fund.

Lord Armsmoor calls Kingston to look after his estates in a legal capacity, but not until Kingston questions him about his story of his father's death, in which are seeming discrepancies. Lord Armsmoor similarly argues successfully. Kingston accepts the position. Lord Armsmoor speaks of Miss Redfern, and says she is coming to live at Bullson's house, for Kingston meets Sydney Melcalfe, the latter calling Sonia "Redfern," and Sonia "Fitzgerald."

At a dinner given by Lord Armsmoor, Kingston meets Lady Cynthia and her daughter Sybil. Mary is never in Sybil's entertainment. Mr. Bullson gives his daughter, whom Kingston is the guest of honor. Sonia Redfern tries to gain him regarding Lord Armsmoor's affairs, but Kingston refuses. Later he has a conference with himself, during which she expresses a dislike for Lord Armsmoor.

SHE seemed to pass out of his life, but he noticed she was pale.

"No Lord Armsmoor was in Canada?" she said. "Do you know how long ago?"

"About ten years, I suppose," he answered. "How long before that he was in Canada, I don't know."

She was silent for several minutes, and they found themselves in the drive leading to the Bullson house. He turned to her suddenly.

"I wonder," he asked, "whether you will tell me why you are so interested in Lord Armsmoor—and Canada?"

"I would rather not," she answered, "and I once saw some one very much like Lord Armsmoor there. But I am convinced that it could only have been a resemblance."

"You mentioned it before—when we saw him in Melcalfe's motor-car."

"Yes, it struck me then," she admitted. "But I am sure that Lord Armsmoor could not have been the person whom I am thinking about. It is ridiculous of me to attach so much importance to a mere likeness."

They stood upon the doorstep, but she checked him as he reached out for the bell.

"You have seen quite a good deal of him," she said. "Tell me what you think of Lord Armsmoor."

His hand fell to his side. He stood under the gas bracket, and she could see his face distinctly. There was a slight frown upon his forehead, a look of trouble in his gray eyes.

"You could not have asked me a more difficult question," he admitted. "Lord Armsmoor has been very kind to me, although my claim upon him has been of the slightest. He is very clever, almost fantastic in some of his methods; he is very polished, and his manners are delightful.

"He would call himself, I believe, a philosopher, and he is, although in a strange, brutal way he is an egoist, very selfish. And behind it all I haven't the faintest idea what sort of a man he is. Sometimes he gives one the impression of a strong man struggling against terrible characteristics, for hidden reasons; at others, he is like one of those brilliant Frenchmen of the last century, who toyed with life and regard with contempt, and seeming it a triumph to remain an unread letter even to their intimates. So you see, after all," he wound up, "I cannot tell you what I think of Lord Armsmoor."

"You can ring the bell," she said. "You must come to-day for a few minutes."

Disturbed Surprise

Their entrance together seemed to cause the little family party a certain amount of disturbed surprise. The girls greeted Brooks with a great show of pleasure, but they looked doubtfully at Mary.

"Did you meet at the front door?" Sonia asked. "I thought I heard voices."

Brooks was a little surprised.

"Your cousin brought her class of factory girls to my lecture to-night at the Secular Hall."

Selina's eyes narrowed a little, but she was silent for a moment. Then she turned to her cousin.

"You might have told us, Mary," she exclaimed, reproachfully. "We should so much have liked to come, should we not, Lonjeon?"

"I am sure we should," Louise answered, unsolicitously. "I can't think why Mary should go off without saying a word."

Mary looked at them both and hugged. "Well," she said, "I have left the house at precisely the same time on Wednesday evenings all through the Winter and neither of you has said anything about it before."

"This is quite different," Selina answered, distantly. "We should very much have enjoyed Mr. Brooks's lecture. Do tell us what it was about."

"Don't bother, Cuthbert, Brooks," Mr. Bullson exclaimed hospitably. "Sit down and try one of these cigars. We've had supper, but if you'd like anything—"

"Not a thing, thanks," Brooks protested. "I'll have a cigar, if I may."

"And a whisky and soda, then," Mr. Bullson insisted. "Say when!"

Sonia turned to Selina. Mary had left the room.

"You were asking about the lecture," he said, hastily. "It was only a very unpretentious affair, and to tell the truth, I grudged only for passing opportunities for reading have not been great. I am quite sure it would have been worth your while to come down. We just read a chapter or so from 'A Tale of Two Cities' and talked about it."

"We should have liked it very much," Selina declared. "To tell us when there is another one will you?"

"With pleasure," he answered. "I warn you, though, that you will be disappointed."

"We will risk that," Selina declared, with a smile. "I hope you have enjoyed this week?"

"It was there on Sunday," he answered.

"And is that beautiful girl, Lady Sybil Carrons, still staying there?"

"Yes," he answered. "Is she very beautiful, Miss Bertie?"

"Well, I thought men would think so," Sonia said, hastily. "I think her face is just a little loud; don't you, Louise?"

Louise signified that the idea had occurred to her.

"And her hair—isn't it badly dyed?" Selina remarked. "Such a pity! It's all in patches."

"I think girls ought not to make up in any way, either," Louise remarked, primly. "A little powder in the house is all very well, but I think it does one's face more harm than good."

"I suppose," Selina remarked, "you men admire all that sort of thing, don't you?"

"I really haven't noticed it with Lady Sybil," Brooks admitted.

Selina sighed.

To Be Continued To-morrow.

SUPERSTITIONS ABOUT SNEEZING

THERE is a quaint old rhyme about sneezing which runs as follows:

Sneeze on Monday, sneeze for danger.
Sneeze on Tuesday, kiss a stranger.
Sneeze on Wednesday, have a letter.
Sneeze on Thursday, something better.
Sneeze on Friday, sneeze for sorrow.
Sneeze on Saturday, see your love to-morrow.

A sneeze on Sunday meant a visit from the parson the next day and a good old English housewife set everything in order against his coming.

The superstition unfailing traditions attached to it, especially among the early English peasants, and handed down to our day they have become superstitions.

The Boston American Pattern

A MODISH BLOUSE WAIST

6858

No. 6,858.—Among the smartest and most attractive blouse waists of the season are those in semi-fitted effect, and very pretty one is here pictured that will not prove at all difficult for the home dressmaker to fashion. The model closes in the back and is laid in tucks at each side of the front, giving a graceful amount of fullness. Short sleeve puffs are used in the making, the square cut neck and elbow length sleeve cape edged with heavy lace. Any of the season's washings will be appropriate, such as taffeta, poupon, satin and Henrietta. For 36-in bust measure 2¾ yards of 27-inch material will be required.

No. 6,858.—Sizes for 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure.

To obtain this pattern, postpaid, send 10 cents, with size, name and address to the BOSTON AMERICAN PATTERN DEPT., P. O. Box 259, Boston, Mass., showing one week for delivery.

The World Judges Us by Our Friends

IT is the easiest thing in the world to be exclusive; anyone can shun their friends, acquaintances, and all amusements, and shut themselves out from the world and the joy of life.

But people who adopt such a policy are really very shallow and narrow-minded. Anyone who takes up an attitude of being too superior to associate with any set that is not their kind in birth or station has a miserly mind, and will become so wrapped up in their own vainglory and self-conceit that in time their fellow-creatures will shun them like a plague.

A broad, open mind will see the folly of standing aloof from their fellow-creatures. A whole-hearted and generous person will find it impossible to ridicule, scorn and avoid those who may not be so advantageously placed as themselves. Only the mean-spirited community can play the high horse.

The true gentlewoman, whether she be that either by birth or naturally so, will always be kind and gractous to those less fortunate than herself.

There are in America to-day as true gentlewomen in mind, thought and feeling who follow humble callings and toil for their daily bread as can be found anywhere. They are the backbone of our country and exclusiveness among them is unknown save perhaps in some exceptional cases.

By being exclusive we never know what we might miss.

For instance, not long ago, a certain lady who declared that she could not possibly associate with her own class, refused an introduction to another lady because she was a struggling artist. The artist heard of this, but being broad-minded, laughed it off. She shortly afterward married a man whose position, both socially and financially, was everything that could be desired. Imagine the chagrin of the lady who scorned to know her.

Those people imagine that if they keep to themselves there is less chance of meeting temptation; that may be so but much trouble for some folks to participate in their fellow-creatures' joys and worries. They forget that.

"Since life is a thorny and difficult path,
Where toil is the portion of man,
We all should endeavor while passing along
To make it as smooth as we can."

True happiness is to be found in trying to discover all that lies best in others' We cannot do this if we keep to ourselves and refuse to associate with other people.

We can only come into the full realization of a joyous life by throwing in our lot with those around us. But we must take care in so doing to see that all our friends are desirable. Remember that the world judges us by our friends.

Brightest Baby and Beauty Winner Will Be Named Sunday

IN the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN next Sunday, July 28, there will be printed the name and the picture of the baby who has won the FIVE HUNDRED DOLLAR PRIZE in the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN'S Prize Baby Contest.

The Judges have entered upon the last week they will spend in judging the thousands of pictures of beautiful babies that have been pouring into this office for months.

But—

Although the entries have closed in the beauty contest there is still time in which to send in bright sayings in competition for the prize in that department of the Prize Baby Contest next Sunday.

The baby whose bright saying wins the $500 building lot in the fine residence neighborhood of Wellington Hillside will be announced in next Sunday's issue of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

If your baby said something bright while you were at home yesterday, jot it down on a piece of paper and mail it to-day to the Bright Sayings Editor, No. 40 Summer street, Boston.

Any entry received up to Saturday will be eligible for the prize which will be awarded next Sunday.

Here are a few selections from the many bright sayings already received:

TOO BAD FOR AUNTIE

My daughter Helen, aged three, who had seen the elephants at the circus, was asked by my aunt what she saw, and you may guess my aunt's embarrassment were little Helen replied: "Oh, auntie, I saw an awful large dog with a bigger nose than yours."

MRS. B. HANNINGTON.
No. 12 Cobb street, Boston.

THOUGHTFUL

My little girl asked for a drink of water. I was busy and said, "Wait a minute, dear."

Big sister Louise, three years, was in the room, and after waiting for a moment came after me and said: "Mamma, sister wants a drink. After her one, so she will be 'unthirst.'"

MRS. L. D. McNAMARA.
No. 16 Empire street, Allston.

BUSINESS SENSE

This morning, when the alarm clock rang at half-past 5, I said, "I guess I will take another nap," when Johnny, aged four, raised up from his bed and said, "I wouldn't, mamma, if I were you, because pa will be late for work and then he won't get any money."

MRS. GRAHAM.
No. 227 E street, South Boston.

SEND IT C. O. D.

My little daughter Marion is visiting her grandma in Worcester. The other evening her Aunt Ella was using the 'phone, and Marion, who was sitting very quiet on the couch, happened to hear the party's name, and immediately asked if she could use the telephone.

Upon being hauled the receiver she said: "Hullo, Winnie. If this is you, Marion is fine; send it collect."

Food Once Spurned Now Highly Prized

HALIBUT only a few years ago was despised except by the poorest. It was used principally as a fertiliser. Halibut steaks to-day are 25 cents a pound.

The planters of the South when hiring out their slaves stipulated they should not be fed on cornmeal or terrapin oftener than three times a week. Terrapin is now $100 a dozen.

Hudson River steamboat crews refused to eat "Albany beef" (sturgeon) more than four times a week. At that time a fish weighing 150 pounds, if a female with roe, would sell for $2 or $3. To-day such a specimen would bring $125.

Shad! To be called a shad-eater, especially in Connecticut, was equivalent to being proposed as a candidate for the poorhouse. A large roe shad sold at the highest, three cents. To-day the price is $1, and they are scarce at that.

Cook Book Free For Choice Recipes

THE writer of every recipe of gifted four. printed below receives a copy of the BOSTON AMERICAN Economy Cook Book, a substantial indexed blankbook of 210 pages, bound in heavy oilcloth, especially designed to preserve these recipe gems in permanent form.

GRAPE CATSUP

FIVE pounds of grapes, mashed, stewed and rubbed through a strainer. Then add one pint of vinegar, three pounds of brown sugar, two tablespoons of ground allspice, one teaspoon each of ground cloves, cinnamon and black pepper and half a teaspoon of salt. Boil all together until thick. MISS BERTHA RUNEY,
No. 39 Yorktown street, No. Cambridge.

COLD WATER GINGER-BREAD

ONE cup of molasses, one teaspoon of soda, one tablespoon of cinnamon, one teaspoon of ginger, two tablespoons of melted lard, one cup of sugar, three cups

PEACH SHORTCAKE

SIFT together two cups flour, four teaspoons baking powder, half teaspoon salt, one tablespoonful sugar.

Rub in one quarter cup of butter. Add gradually three-quarters of a cup of milk; roll out and bake in layer cake tins. In baking, split the cakes and spread with sliced peaches and sugar, cover top with sliced peaches and whipped cream sweetened and flavored with almond extract. Eaten at once.

MISS A. RUSSELL,
No. 28 Portland street, Dorchester.

WHITE COCOANUT CAKE

ONE cup of butter, two cups of sugar, white of four eggs, one cup of sweet milk, three cups of flour, two teaspoons of baking powder. Flavor to taste. Bake this in three layers and make an icing of two cups of confectioner's sugar and about three tablespoons of sweet cream and a small pinch of salt. Put this between layers and on top and sprinkle with cocoanut. This never fails.

BANKRUPTCY MOVE AGAINST HOME REALTY

Petition Against Providence Concern to Be Filed To-morrow.

GOFF UNDER $10,000 BONDS

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 23.—The climax in the financial troubles which have come so suddenly upon Colonel Isaac L. Goff and his Home Realty Company will be reached to-morrow, when a bankruptcy petition will probably be filed. A committee of the creditors will place the affairs of the company before Judge Brown of the United States District Court, and it is expected that this action will lead to a very thorough investigation of its affairs.

The treasurers of the various petitioning companies will affix their signatures to the document to-day. The companies which will take action to have the Realty Company adjudged bankrupt are: The L. H. Tillinghast Supply Company, which has a claim for $170.98; the Congdon & Carpenter Company, a claim for $175.80, and L. Vaughan Z Co., with a claim of $158.13.

No Contest Expected.

Once the matter thus formally reaches the attention of the United States District Court, it is expected there will be no answer or resistance by the Home Realty Company during the ten days allotted them by law, inasmuch as no for every inclination has been shown to assist the creditors.

Should the court decide for bankruptcy proceedings, the case will go to Referee in Bankruptcy Chester W. Barrows, whose duty it will become to supervise the work done by a trustee, who will be elected by the creditors.

It is stated that the action which has now been taken to insure bankruptcy proceedings will lead to a thorough investigation into all the affairs of the insolvent company.

The writ of arrest which three deputy sheriffs tried in vain to serve on Colonel Isaac L. Goff Saturday, was served yesterday, at his home at Washington Park, by Deputy Sheriff Peter J. Healey, and Presiding Justice E. Shaw, for contempt, went bail to the extent of $10,000, the amount of the claim made by the Atlantic National Bank.

As it had been arranged between John S. Murdock, representing the Atlantic National Bank, and Charles A. Wilson, who, while he says he is not counsel for Colonel Goff, represented him in the matter, that the writ could be served yesterday at 3 o'clock. Deputy Sheriff Peter J. Healey, General Wilson and Presiding Justice Shaw arrived there shortly after that time.

Served in Sick Room.

They were ushered into the sick room and Dr. H. W. Kimball was there. The nature of the case was explained to Mr. Goff and Mr. Shaw was accepted as surety. The whole proceedings lasted but a few moments. Sheriff Healey said afterward that Colonel Goff seemed to be all though he refused to express an opinion as to just how sick he was.

POINTS WON IN DEFENCE OF HAYWOOD

BOISE, Ida., July 23.—To-day Attorney W. E. Richardson, for the defense in the Haywood case, is continuing his argument, which began yesterday morning and continued through last evening, bringing out a fact that the Western Federation of Miners was organized by and with the advice of James H. Hawley, the prosecutor, is now contended by the Federation is the organized conspiracy to do murder and wreck the property of those who oppose the will of the leaders, Haywood, Moyer and members of the executive board.

If the attorney read with pointed sarcasm the statute of Idaho defining what requires that the testimony of an accomplice, corroborative or otherwise, is sufficient to convict, and then he argued that, stripped of verbiage, the case that Haywood has come to naught.

He criticised President Roosevelt for ordering Haywood and his associates "undesirable citizens," in advance of a trial, and asked the jury to dismiss any fear that that might have incurred in their minds of a life careful and conscientious consideration to the evidence which has been placed before them.

"In this case," said Mr. Richardson, "there has never been any doubt as to who is responsible for the murder of Governor Steunenberg.

WILL TUTOR SON OF PRESIDENT

WORCESTER, July 23.—Waldo D. Parker, graduate of Clark College, class of 1905, has just received an appointment as private tutor to Archie, the youngest son of President Roosevelt, and will join the Roosevelts at Oyster Bay, to remain there during the rest of the Summer. Young Roosevelt, owing to protracted illness during the past year, fell behind in his mathematics and Latin, and he will receive the tuition of Mr. Parker, he will catch up with his studies by Fall. Mr. Parker will also tutor a young son of Emlen Roosevelt, uncle of the President, who is also summering at Oyster Bay.

The boys will spend one hour a day at their studies, the rest of the time being spent with their tutor in out of door sports. Mr. Parker, who has thus added to the fame of his native town, was an honor student of Clark, and since his graduation has been associated with mathematics and Latin at the Holderness School for Boys at Plymouth, N. H.

PRESIDENT IS MUM ON STATE CLASH

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., July 23.—Although President Roosevelt is closely following the developments of the Southern Pacific railroad rate court fight, it was announced by Secretary Loeb to-night that no statement should be issued by the executive, who has turned the whole matter over to Attorney-General Bonaparte, expecting the latter to safeguard the Government's interest.

After Assistant Attorney-General Sanford makes his report on the matter to Mr. Bonaparte the latter will probably prepare an opinion, which he will transmit to Secretary Hill. If the President deems this of general interest he will make it public.

Pretty Malden Girl Says Millionaire Adopted Her

Romantic Attachment of Late Justus E. Ewing Disclosed by Girl's Suit.

CONSTANCE E. WATTERS.

JUSTUS E. EWING.

That the late Justus E. Ewing, millionaire, publisher and sportsman of New York, had grown attached to and had actually adopted a Malden girl, who now seeks through the chancery courts of New Jersey an equal share of the estate with the widow and daughter, is the denouement of a romance unknown in the life of the well known man.

Action has just been filed in the New Jersey courts at Trenton by Miss Constance E. Watters, now living at No. 316 West Ninety-fifth street, New York, say dispatches to the BOSTON AMERICAN, in which the young woman claims that Ewing adopted her from her home in Malden in November, 1894. Miss Watters says that she was adopted under the name Constance E. Watters, with the consent of her mother and brother, Frank V. Watters, now of New York.

It was a month later, she avers, that Ewing formally adopted her in St. Louis, Mo., the papers being executed by Henry C. Ladd, a notary, of that city.

Stranger to Widow.

Strange even than the romantic attachment which existed between Ewing and the young woman is the fact that it is claimed that Mrs. Minnie C. Ewing, the widow, and Mrs. Louis D. Compton, the natural daughter, are not acquainted with Miss Watters. They had heard of her indirectly, it is true, but had never seen her until Mr. Ewing died in Chicago last February, when she appeared to be recognized as an heir and was ignored.

Miss Watters, in her remarkable petition, says that she was almost constantly with Mr. Ewing from the latter part of 1894 until his death from pneumonia in February 22, last.

"I resided with him, administering to his wants as a dutiful daughter should until the time of death," says this remarkable petition.

Is Wholly Ignored.

"Peaceably and with good intention, I have gone to Minnie C. Ewing, the widow, and Frances Compton, asking to be acknowledged as an equal heir with the daughter after the dowry is paid, only to be wholly refused and they still refuse."

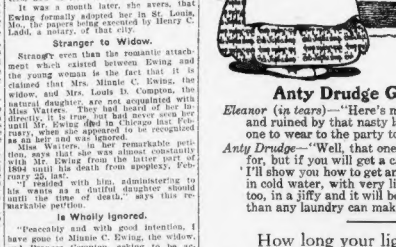
Should the suit of Miss Watters be permitted and she be successful, she will receive about one-half of the million of dollars, at present invested in lands in the vicinity of Monmouth Beach, N. J.

Miss Watters claims to be in possession of papers proving her declaration that she is the legally adopted daughter of Justus E. Ewing, and as such entitled to share equally in his estate. The suit reveals that she is at the present time making her home with Frank V. Watters, who was one time confidential agent of Mr. Ewing.

Big Land Deals.

In her affidavit Miss Watters claims that after Mr. Ewing adopted her he made large purchases of lands in Ocean township, Monmouth county, N. J. She says that these properties were deeded to Frank V. Watters, to be held in trust for Ewing. Later Watters was superseded by Louis D. Compton, who married Frances E. Ewing, the natural daughter of Ewing. It is declared that all of the property which the heirs are claiming is conveyed in like manner. It is also charged that unless her name is recognized promptly by the courts or the executors be restrained the property will be deeded to a third party in a further effort to prevent her getting her part.

Mrs. Ewing is in Los Angeles, Cal. It is not denied by friends of Mr. Ewing that he was fond of Miss Watters and that the two were seen much together, especially in automobiles.



Anty Drudge Gives Advice.

Eleanor (in tears)—"Here's my prettiest shirtwaist torn and ruined by that nasty laundry. I haven't a clean one to wear to the party to-night."

Anty Drudge—"Well, that one is past helping and crying for, but if you will get a cake of Fels-Naptha soap I'll show you how to get another one clean in a hurry, in cold water, with very little work. We'll iron it, too, in a jiffy and it will be far cleaner and fresher than any laundry can make it."

How long your light summer clothes last depends not on how much they are worn, but on how often they are washed. That is, if they are washed in the old-fashioned way.

If they are washed with Fels-Naptha in cold or lukewarm water, the washing won't harm them a bit.

Boiling hurts any clothes, but it is particularly hard on light stuffs, such as sheer linens, lawns, laces and muslins—rots the fabric so they will tear easily. And hard rubbing on the washboard wears them out and frays them.

You avoid this by washing the Fels-Naptha way in cold or lukewarm water. Boiling and hard-rubbing are unnecessary, because Fels-Naptha dissolves the dirt into tiny particles which are sent flying by light rubbing and thorough rinsing.

Then, too, the clothes are cleaner, whiter and sweeter, as well as longer-wearing.

Be sure to follow the easy directions on the red and green wrapper.

MILLIONAIRE IS SLAIN IN AUTO CRASH

Three Others Seriously Hurt and Maimed in Hingham Accident.

TOURING CAR STRUCK TEAM

One man was killed outright and four companions severely injured when a fast-running auto, said to have been operating at a thirty-five-mile-an-hour clip, dashed into a horse and wagon on Lincoln street, Hingham, yesterday.

The victims were: Frank H. Harmon of No. 771 Madison avenue, New York city, instantly killed; Mrs. Harmon, his wife, seriously injured about the legs and body, removed to the Hotel Thorndike, Boston; E. H. Dinnan, New York, scalp wounds and contusions; T. B. Lace, lawyer, of New York, both wrists broken and contusions.

Chauffeur McCarthy had let the huge car out to a high speed, covering the long stretch of nearly straight roadway at about a thirty-five-mile-an-hour pace.

Nearly opposite Thaxter street the party was horrified to see a horse and wagon suddenly emerge from the cross road, the horse at a brisk trot, directly crossing their path.

With a warning honk of the horn the chauffeur swerved the car sharply to the right, while Beverly Pearson, driver of the team, tugged at his reins in an effort to halt the horse.

Another second and the automobile struck the horse, killing him instantly and throwing the driver to the ground by the force of the impact. The sudden swerve of the machine caused the tires to burst, letting the car down on its bare rims. Twenty feet further the automobile swung into the tracks of the street railway, and with a sharp grind the powerful vehicle lurched and turned turtle, pinning beneath it Harmon and Dinnan, while the other occupants were thrown into the street.

Harmon is reported to be a millionaire.

NAVAL APPRENTICES BREAK FOR LIBERTY

PROVIDENCE, July 23.—The most daring break for liberty ever attempted at the naval training station at Newport was made on Sunday night, when four naval apprentices who were confined in the "brig," near Barrack C, fought their way out and attempted to escape from Coasters Harbor Island, on which the naval station is situated. Three of the men were captured.

R. I. POLICE CHIEF IN BANKRUPTCY

PROVIDENCE, July 23.—Edward G. Macomber, Chief of Police of the town of Warren, has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States District Court. He states that his liabilities are $62,206 and his assets $2100, including household goods worth $200 and wearing apparel worth $100, which are exempt.

FIGHTING 9TH WILL PARADE

The "Fighting Ninth" infantry, Colonel William H. Donovan of Lawrence commanding, will be in camp at South Framingham from August 4 to 10, inclusive. The command will also take part in the Old Home Week parade in Boston August 5.

The companies of the Ninth infantry are stationed now as follows: Companies A, B, C, D, E, H and I, Boston; company F, Lawrence; company G, Worcester; company K, Clinton; company L, Natick, and company M, Lowell.

The out-of-town companies are to arrive in Boston on the 3d before 9:30 a. m., when the regiment will form on Commonwealth avenue for parade.

The rules for camp this year are more strict. Visitors may not come with the commands. Enlisted men must have signed passes to leave camp, and visitors must have passes to enter. Civilians may not spend the night in camp. No sports are to be carried on on Sunday.

ACCEPTS TRAIN HORROR BLAME

DETROIT, Mich., July 23.—Conductor Hamilton, in charge of the freight train, whose collision with a Pere Marquette excursion train Saturday, cost thirty-three lives, formally accepts responsibility for the wreck.

"The engineer, the fireman, the brakeman and myself all read the order to clear Salam at 9:25 o'clock, whereas the order shows that was the hour for clearing Plymouth. The mistake gave us insufficient time to make Salem and caused the wreck," he says.

Engineer Lee Alvord of the passenger engine, is in a serious condition. He is delirious part of the time and sits up in bed raving through every motion he took when he saw the freight train and death loom up ahead of him. Then he cries: "My God, the women and children!"

SOMERVILLE WIFE MISSING

Unable to explain her long absence, Arthur Tucker is anxious to locate his wife, Mrs. Georgia Tucker, who left him and four children Saturday, July 13, at their home, No. 11 Franklin street, East Somerville, ostensibly to visit her parents in Manchester, N. H.

On the night that Mrs. Tucker was last seen by her husband she received from him his weekly wages, kissed the four children, Pearl, eight; Sadie, six; Alma, three, and Maitland, 2, and said that she would positively return on the following afternoon.

She failed to return and on the following Tuesday, somewhat alarmed, Mr. Tucker went to Manchester and learned that his wife had not been there.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

CHICAGO, July 23.—After winning two games, losing a two-inning battle and losing one against the World's Champion White Sox, the Boston Pilgrims left this city and are en route for the Hub.

The Bostons will open a home engagement with the Western teams to-morrow. Detroit will be the first to visit the "wilds of culture," and the other "wild and woolly" teams will follow. If the Bostons display the great form at home they showed here, it is a safe bet that they will be in sixth place, if not higher, when they go on their next trip away from home.

Boston Team's Record.

On their Western trip the Bostons won one out of three in Detroit, losing a four-teen-inning game; won two out of five in Cleveland; one out of three in St. Louis, their victory being scored in sixteen innings, and two out of three, with one tie, here.

SILVER BARON.

LEADING LADY.

Even in the games they lost the Pilgrims showed good fighting form, and with a little luck in their favor would have won a big majority of games instead of about breaking even. The Bostons only got one real beating and it came on a Saturday in Cleveland when the Naps pounded the ball hard, and the Hub team went down to defeat, eight to one.

Manager McGinley feels elated because of the success scored by his men in the West. The Bostons made a better showing than any other Eastern team and "Mac" thinks that's going some.

Wagner Playing Well.

The Pilgrims will return to the Hub in the best form they have enjoyed this season, and they should win many games. Wagner, who is taking Freddy Parent's place, because of the injury to the latter's ankle, is playing great ball. He is both fielding and hitting in major league style.

Jesse Tannehill is now in shape and with George Winter, "Cy" Young, Ralph Glaze doing grand work, with Oberlin Pruett and Jacobsen to help out once in a while, the Bostons feel that they will make every team in the league humble from now on.

The Bostons and Chicagos played a twelve-inning tie, one to one, yesterday, the game being called at 4 o'clock to allow the Bostons to catch a train.

DOVES WIND UP HOME SERIES WITH PIRATES

Willis, p.	Flaherty, p.

Another fierce contest is on the table this afternoon when the Doves wind up the home series with the Pirates and there will be music all the way.

The Doves are furious to take one from the Smoketown bunch, and yesterday's thirteen inning argument is likely to be repeated unless the locals put the clamps on before then.

There has not been a series on the South End grounds this year which could compare for all round aggressiveness, and was so brim full of hard fighting. The Doves and the Pirates when the latter were going at their best, making a fine Eastern trip, and as a result the games have been of the most exciting nature, as Tenney's men with so many ex-Pirates in the midst are stretching themselves to check Clarke's gang.

Today's battle Flaherty, the Carnegie boy, will perform on the slab and he proved the best pitching can expect the Pirates he can do the job.

The southpaw will cause all kinds of trouble for the Westerners, and if the men behind him do their part there should be one victory wrought out of the group.

It will be a case of old pitchers against their former teams as Vic Willis will do the twirling for the Pirates. He blanked the Giants and will be a big obstacle to overcome, judging by his work this season.

Those who saw that thirteen-inning battle yesterday, which the Pirates captured by the score of 5 to 4, got a glimpse of what real diamond sport is like. With each team holding the other down when runs seemed sure to come it kept the fans on the anxious seat once the Doves tied the score.

The Pirates got such a substantial lead at the outset there was small hope left till Rendall, who was back of the game, took a desperate chance and drew a throw from Gibson while Beaumont was on third. Gibson made a bad heave and Beaumont scored. Rendall never stopped running till he landed over the plate, beating out the relay from Leach to the pan. Tenney was shaved by one point in the seventh, but the Doves drew even again in the eighth. Then it was a race for the odd score. In every inning to the end the Doves got a runner on base but could not get him around.

Outside of the first inning Dorner was effective and had the Pirates eating out of his doubtful if he could have fared worse than Young, who went in the twelfth, and it was Wagner's three-base slam which got the run which won for the Pirates finally. Camnitz was pounded plentifully, but no managed to pull out of close quarters time and again.

CONNOLLY TO MEET GAINES TO-NIGHT

To-night's bouts at the Winnisimmet Athletic Club in Chelsea should furnish some excellent sport for the members, and particularly the main event, in which Barry Connolly of Portland and Jerry Gaines of Cambridge, are the principals.

Connolly is the cleverest fellow that Jerry has yet encountered, and he will have his troubles trying to score that sleep wallop of his. Connolly is a great jabber, for he drives that left hand straight to the target every time. As nearly all Jerry's opponents of the past got to the Cambridge man with their lefts there is no reason why Barry should not on account of his experience be more successful in the use of that member than the others Jerry fought.

Connolly is more elusive than the mobility of big fellows, and should steer clear of danger. The match promises to be lively on advancing in his class if possible, and he is confident that he will offer battle.

The preliminary boys are all in good shape, and the first introductory event is a go, and it is doubtful if he could have fared worse than Young, who went in the twelfth, and it was Wagner's three-base slam which got the run which won for the Pirates finally. Camnitz was pounded

GLIDDEN TOURISTS ON WAY TO PHILADELPHIA

BY J. C. KERRISON.

BALTIMORE, Md., July 22.—Another car complained for the Glidden trophy had a fall from the clean score class yesterday. It was Stoddard-Dayton, which had been looked upon as one of the best conditioned cars left in the tour since the tenth day. Its misfortune came while ascending Tuscarora Mountains just outside of McConnellsburg. He burned out his brake shoe and sheered off the screws holding the brake to the propeller shaft, putting the car out of the running for some little time and removing the Stoddard-Dayton from the clean score class.

The car reached this city quite late and received a penalization of 12.6 points which places the ebis the car represents in the Cleveland—somewhat lower in the standing.

Johnes of Pittsburg came very close to increasing his penalties yesterday, but had more or less difficulties with his car. His constant hard work had much to do with straining the engine and running parts, and one of his sudden dirties had wrenched and broken his radiator so that it was with difficulty that he could keep his engine cooled. He got delayed somewhat and while making hurried repairs between the scene and a mail wagon. He injured the house of the postman and slightly scratched the same. As a result of this there were two decidedly wrathy individuals, the postman and J. W. Means, the owner of the motor car. Both are looking for theirs.

Stoddard Only Car to Fall.

The Stoddard was the only clean score car to fall in either the Glidden or the Mower contest. The latter has developed into a two cornered contest between H. K. Sheridan, in the White roadbed and Leubsch in the Stoddard-Dayton.

Both men are driving well and carefully, taking no chances by engaging in sprints. The manner in which the White team is carrying on its campaign in this tour is a model that should be adopted by others. The three Whites keep constantly at work plugging along in a thoroughly efficient manner, the result being that all of the White cars are now possessed of clear scores, they being the only team entered by a manufacturer with all cars being free from penalization.

In the Glidden standing the Buffalo club still has a slight advantage over the men of Pittsburg, and are hoping against hope that they will retain that advantage until the tour finishes in New York tomorrow. And by the way, Chairman Hower is great on street parades with himself at the head. Before the tourists enter any of the large cities the cars are lined up and with the chairman in the lead the line of march is taken to the hotel. The band plays "See the Conquering Hero Comes," while Napoleon Hower, followed by the tourists, assumes to way greetings. He is great on display and especially in hotelries where he may be conspicuous, whether advantageously or not. Harry Knights of Boston set the example of riding without a hat and Mr. Hower has become quite common. George Davis, of Tiosaws Flyer fame, tried the trick and became so thoroughly sunbaked that he was confined to his room during the two days stay in Calcage, his face having swollen so badly as to close both his eyes.

But of the run of yesterday. It was a hard one on men and machines, being over 140 miles of hard going on all and down dale, both of which were filled with sandstone or gravel wares, whichever you please.

This morning the men started the second last stage of the tour, the total distance negotiated to date being 1,700 miles.

Cars on 171-Mile Run To-day.

Today's mileage is 171 miles, over good, hard and indifferent roads, which must be negotiated at an average of 16.4 miles per hour.

This looks easy on paper, but believe me it will be difficult of attainment on the part of many of the cars, which look more qualified for the hands of the repairman than for the continuance of such a tour as this. The hard work of the tour, and the fact that the cars have not been given the ordinary amount of care and attention, has weakened them to a considerable degree. No average car would receive the attention that they have received since the start of the tour some two weeks ago, and the fact that they are standing up under the gaff speaks volumes for the honesty and ability of the American manufacturer, even though some few of the cars are now held together in certain places by barbed wire taken from nearby fences owing to the ingredient carelessness of the operators, who were called upon to make repairs.

Mrs. Cuneo was among the starters of the morning, she having brought her car into town late last evening and joined the touring parade. The tourists have decided to present a roving cup to Mrs. Cuneo on their arrival in New York, not as a tribute to the car she is driving, but rather as a token of respect and admiration which her work as an amateur has demanded and received.

THREE LIKELY-LOOKING HORSES NOW AT READVILLE

BENVOLA.

While the Grand Circuit opened this week at Detroit, yet it is not till the Readville meeting, August 19-23, has been reached that the season's big futurity races begin, events that are of the utmost importance to breeding throughout the country.

There are three youngsters in training at the Readville track for the two-year-old division of the American Horse Breeder Futurity that have impressed those who have seen them work as very likely to be strong factors in the race and having each a great chance of carrying off the major portion of the stake money.

Leading Lady, by Bingen, 2.08¾, out of Miss Pratt 2.17¼, is under the charge of Bob Prowse. She is one of the sweetest trotting fillies that ever wore harness, and at no stage has she been asked to step to her limit of speed. The fastest mile she has been to date is 2.28, the last half in 1.10. She is the property of Benjamin Capp, a prominent Boston business man, who owns a stock farm in Concord, Mass.

Benvola, by Bingara, son of Bingen, dam by Kremlin, 2.07½, in the stable of John Young, has stepped off a mile in 2.20, and the final contest at a 2.20 gait. He is owned by William Russell Allen, proprietor of the noted Allen Farm, Pittsfield.

Silver Baron, by Baron Silver, 2.25¾, is owned and being trained by a Mr. Carroll of South Boston. He has been a mile in 2.20 and the last quarter in 33 seconds.

Were it the wish of the handlers of these colts there is no doubt that any one of them could now trot right close to 2.20, but it has been their idea to bring them safely along to the time of their engagements in the pink of condition.

Gans Sure to Meet Memsic
JEFF TO REFEREE

LOS ANGELES, July 23.—Manager Tom McCarey has closed negotiations for a twenty-round battle between Joe Gans and George Memsic (Tommy Burns's protege, known as Jimmy Burns), with the probable date of the encounter set at August 16.

Manager McCarey, after several days' strenuous negotiations over the long distance telephone with Ben Selig, Gans's manager in San Francisco, closed the deal. Several days ago McCarey offered a purse of $10,000 for this battle. Gans came back with a demand that his share must be $10,000 win or lose. Yesterday Burns, Memsic's manager, agreed to let Gans have $7,500 as his end of the purse, or would fight Gans on a winner take all basis. Gans would not agree to fight winner take all and came down in his demands and asked for $8,000.

Gans's demands were all of a monetary nature, and when Burns found that Gans was not particular as to the weight, agreed to let Gans tip the scales at 133 pounds, if the weight was made 133 pounds at 5 o'clock the afternoon of the battle. Jim Jeffries will referee as per Gans's demands. Gans and his manager are expected in Los Angeles to-day and will sign articles of agreement and post forfeits.

Purity — there is nothing else half so important in beer. And nothing else is nearly so expensive.

Purity means absolute cleanliness.

It means freedom from germs. Even the air in our cooling rooms is filtered. And every bottle of Schlitz beer is sterilized after it is sealed.

It means an aged beer — aged for months, until it cannot cause biliousness.

Without those precautions, no beer can be healthful. And who would knowingly drink beer that was not?

BIG FIRE SHOW FREE TO 30,000 AT WONDERLAND

Armies of Sunday American Readers Enjoy Beauties of Great Summer Parks Without Cost.

The greatest Monday crowd of the season visited Wonderland at Revere Beach yesterday. It was an army of pleasure seekers and of BOSTON AMERICAN readers that filled the charming Suburban amusement resort to its utmost capacity. Nine out of ten of the men, women and children who thronged both entrances to the park presented the SUNDAY AMERICAN, which acted as open sesames to the park and to the great Fire and Flames show.

As soon as the word got around that the SUNDAY AMERICAN coupons were worth a free admission at the gate and 25 at the fire spectacle—every AMERICAN reader planned at once a trip to this beautiful resort. The coupons were accepted by the gate attendants with smiles and the AMERICAN readers found themselves inside the park confronted with its myriad marvels, without the cost of a cent.

The rush for the thrilling fire scenes like all the other free performances were given during the day and evening to the crowded capacity of every AMERICAN coupon holders. Never before had the brave fire-fighting heroes had such a host of visitors were their remarkable efforts greeted with more enthusiastic applause.

The capacity of the Fire and Flames Theatre was taxed to the limit, it was being declared, when the night's work was over, that thirty thousand AMERICAN readers had witnessed the performances during the day and evening.

"They were the greatest audiences I ever saw," he declared. "They were made up of every man, woman and child in Boston and AMERICAN readers. But enjoyable as the Fire and Flames exhibition was, the SUNDAY AMERICAN guests, it did not sum up all the pleasures there were pile-driver things to see and to enjoy. The expenditure of a few coupons cut from the SUNDAY AMERICAN is equal to all of pleasure absolutely free of cost.

All crowds are interesting, and the crowds of yesterday were particularly so because they formed one great fraternity—an Homogeneity wide—yet—wide fraternity of people, bound together by a common interest, and were they not all guests of the same host? Did they not learn their daily lessons of the world's doings from the same textbook?

"The magic magic made inside the SUNDAY AMERICAN," was a familiar salutation, as one visitor, holding the coupons in his hand, passed another doing the same thing, and the two were united in the pro duce a friendly smile.

"I never understood it at all," remarked one bewildered man, evidently a globe-trotter, who was facing absent-mindedly party by Boston friends. "You pay five cents for a combination of newspaper and magazine on Sunday, and you get it on all day Sunday, and with it you get a free day's outing at one of the greatest Wonderful country this." And he jotted something in a note-book to remember.

It was a great day, and to-day will be greater for the SUNDAY AMERICAN coupons are good for free admission to Wonderland and to Fire and Flames to-day, and the management is preparing for another record crowd of SUNDAY AMERICAN readers.

7,000 COUPONS ARE TAKEN AT REVERE AMUSEMENT PLACES

During last week more than 7,000 BOSTON AMERICAN coupons were taken at the leading resorts along Revere Beach. In every instance but one they were half a dozen coupons. The exception was the Skating Rink where a coupon gives admission and a coupon and a dime toward ladies' skates. The other amusement places include the bathing in the ocean, Crystal Cascade, Fairyland Theatre, Automobile race, Mystic Mill, Scenic Railway, Rough Rider Hippodrome, Palace Merry-go-round and Electric Scenic Railway. While using the coupons this week bear in mind that a new set will be published next Sunday.

MORE FREE TICKETS NEXT SUNDAY FOR CANOBIE LAKE PARK

At beautiful Canobie Lake Park SUNDAY AMERICAN coupons are being used by the thousands two days this week and next Sunday's AMERICAN will publish a new list of free attractions. Manager Woodman of the Southern New Hampshire Railway says that he is exceeding his own expectations, the park proving a magnet to visitors from all sections.

The Park theatre will be one of the free attractions next week. Here they are playing the "Pretty Persian," a unique show issued on the old divorce laws of the Shah's domain.

BIG BABBOON AT LEXINGTON PARK HAS BAD TEMPER

The Big Baboon with the auburn hair at Lexington park is making a distinct hit, and developing unusual intelligence even for a monkey. Unfortunately the baboon isn't amiable and his attempts at intimate very largely in getting mad with almost everybody tries to make friends with him. His rage is so marked and so funny that the Big Baboon is exhibiting a sensation with the young folks who flock about the monkey cages every day. With several five other animals his mad majesty can be seen free upon admission to the park, and the SUNDAY AMERICAN coupons admit you to the park.

Let Us Be Thankful for THIS

The Day Has Gone By When Ignorance Could Successfully Attack Knowledge

A clerical gentleman in the West, well meaning but out of date, has attacked public libraries and those that give them to the people. This well-meaning gentleman says that libraries are "sinks of corruption." And he adds most deliciously, "They (the libraries) place within reach of the masses the infidel teachings of Voltaire and the sensational dime novel."

This juxtaposition of Voltaire and the dime novel as dangerous intellectual partners is delightful. It is almost a pity that Voltaire could not have lived to hear it. It would have given that keen-faced, quizzical old gentleman real pleasure.

There was a day when the attack upon a public library or any other useful educational agent had a meaning, a DANGEROUS meaning, for the friends of humanity. We can all rejoice, for that day is passed. The man who attacks the public library, the public school or any agency for distributing the knowledge which Providence means we all shall have—masses AND classes—calls forth simply a good-natured smile of pity. "The masses" have made up their minds that they are going to know for THEMSELVES, they are going to think for THEMSELVES, and they refuse to accept the theory that knowledge was intended for a few superiors fattening upon the masses while keeping them ignorant.

Public libraries are more numerous than prisons. Public schools are more numerous than poorhouses. As libraries and schools become more numerous, prisons, poorhouses and other relics of the ignorant, brutal, knowledge-hating past will disappear more and more.

It was not always as it is now. It was not always safe to know the truth or tell it. Harvey was denounced for discovering and announcing the circulation of the blood, as Galileo was denounced for announcing the circulation of suns and planets, as Victor Hugo puts it.

To-day we recognize in Harvey the intelligent interpreter of the wonderful human body, and in Galileo one who glorified creation by showing to men the marvels of cosmic power and clearing away from their minds the limited, trashy, brutalizing belief in a limited universe, with a tiny planet and a wretched, selfish humanity for its centre.

Whenever you read attacks on public schools, libraries or human intelligence generally, don't get impatient. Be glad that we have reached a point where such attacks are amusing only, and no longer harmful. Remember that in old days almost every good idea, even when demonstrated, was attacked. The Sorbonne—we quote Hugo again—solemnly prohibited "the healing of disease by the use of quinine, 'A WICKED BARK.'"

Everybody knows now that quinine, denounced as "a wicked bark," is one of man's great benefactors, a specific fighting death and suffering.

As we have said, no attack can hurt the public library or the public school, or the determination of the people to educate themselves AND TO KNOW. But such attacks on education and knowledge, when they emanate from religious sources, are really harmful, for they hurt RELIGION by diminishing respect for it—and that is a very great misfortune.

Those who are responsible for putting religious teachings of whatever denomination before the people should endeavor to keep them clothed with respect.

Attacks upon mental enlightenment, upon the intellectual growth by which alone the people can develop, are powerless to harm education, but extremely harmful to the source whence they emanate.

In Jules Verne's Day—A Dream

To-day Common Sense and Almost REALITY

The young German Emperor gets peevish sometimes, it is said, and wants a real war. He feels that a man with the blood of Frederick the Great in his veins ought to be thrashing somebody, and colored gentlemen in Africa or occasional Social Democrats nearer home are not enough.

The news from Berlin tells us that the Kaiser is deeply interested in airships—fighting ships, of course. He is also interested in the suggestions that these airships could be used to conquer or devastate Great Britain. The Emperor's mother was the sister of the English King, but somehow that doesn't seem to make any difference. The Emperor apparently thinks that to thrash his old uncle and keep the fight in the family would be rather desirable and patriotic.

What interests us is the suggestion that war balloons might enable the Emperor to conquer the English, and make that protecting channel that the English have talked so much about a foolish story of long ago.

If we had heard this talk about conquering England in a balloon a few years ago, we should have thought about Jules Verne, and paid no further attention.

But the fiction of Jules Verne's day is to-day's reality.

The airship with its load of dynamite, or some higher explosive, would very soon make that narrow English Channel as ridiculous as the famous little moat around Croker's house at Wantage.

For a long time the man who had a moat or an open ditch around his house felt free from attack. To-day such a ditch only brings mosquitoes and malaria: it does no good.

The English still imagine that the ditch between them and the Continent is very important. But its importance is diminishing, and soon that ditch will be nothing more than any other little moat, just a humorous reminder of the past.

Napoleon stood on the edge of the English ditch for a very long time, trying some scheme to get his sailing vessels across the water. If he could have got a few tens of thousands of men across that ditch, only a few miles wide, he could have closed up the pocketbook that was hiring men to fight him on the Continent, and perhaps made himself the world's real ruler. But he couldn't get his sailing vessels across, and, instead of his conquering England, England locked him up on a little island, and that was the end of it.

Even the great Napoleon, always looking into the future, could little imagine that the day would come when the Prussian King, whose ancestors he despised so thoroughly, would be talking of sending to England a flock of balloons. His mind couldn't grasp that, for it was actually at the very time when he wanted to cross the English Channel that Napoleon refused to give Fulton a chance to explain thoroughly his steamship idea.

Since those old days the steamship has realized itself, and may soon be, in fighting, a thing of the past. The submarine makes it unsafe, the balloon also.

The world moves. And the only foolish man is he who says THAT ANYTHING is impossible. What a man can imagine, HE CAN DO. Therefore, let your imagination work; don't be afraid to dream; you may be at least a prophet, one of those advanced thinkers whose dreams of to-day are the facts and the prosperity of a later day.

THE "LEAP FOR LIFE"

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

Hot or Cold

By Wex Jones

WHEN Winter blasts are chill and the frosts are fit to kill,
Cuddled close up to the steam in the gaslight's flickering gleam,
With a book that has the tropic as its one and only topic,
How we love to read and read, as the scintillating screed
Tells in burning words the story of some tawny maiden's deed.

IN the palm tree's spot of shade sits the coal-eyed tropic maid
Smile a withering sort of smile as she learns her lover's guile,
And sharpens up her knife to take away his life,
For in the Winter book, as you gather at a look,
Every scene is hot and dusty, every character a crook.

BUT now that sales of pop have climbed up to the top,
And the reading world is lazy and the reader's mind is hazy,
Nothing goes except a story of the icy mountains hoary,
And how the Eskimo, seated on a floating floe,
In the very frigid water sticks a titillating toe.

SO we read the frozen cooing of the shivery lover wooing,
As he flops into the snow and he murmurs, "Do not go,
But won't you kindly step right in, at least the icebox full of big rubber,"
And he wins the Esquimaux girl up among the sway and swirl
Of the twisting, tumbling, cracking floes that swing and bird.

Why and Wherefore

John Bull and Uncle Sam

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Sir—Why do they call England "John Bull" and the United States "Uncle Sam"? D. M. L.

[The national nickname of England is taken from a satire by Dr. Arbuthnot, in which the Frenchman is termed Louis Baboon, the Dutchman Nicholas Frog, and the Englishman John Bull. The story goes that the inspectors of Elbert Anderson's store on the Hudson were Ebenezer Wilson and his uncle, Samuel Wilson; the latter superintended the workmen and went by the name of "Uncle Sam." The stores were marked "E. A.—U. S." (Elbert Anderson—United States), and one of the employees being asked one day the meaning of the "U. S." replied that it "stood for Uncle Sam." The joke took and soon became stereotyped.]

St. Patrick

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Sir—Where was St. Patrick born? W. M. CONNERS.

[There is great uncertainty about St. Patrick's birthplace. He was probably born about the year 200, at Boulogne-sur-Mer, France.]

Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Worth While

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

(REPRINTED BY REQUEST)

IT is easy enough to be pleasant
When life flows by like a song,
But the man worth while is the one who will smile
When everything goes "dead wrong"
For the test of the heart is trouble,
And it always comes with the years,
And the smile that is worth the praises of earth
Is the smile that shines through tears.

It is easy enough to be prudent
When nothing tempts you to stray,
When without or within no voice of sin
Is luring your soul away.
But it's only a negative virtue
Until it is tried by fire,
And the life that is worth the honor of earth
Is the one that resists desire.

By the cynic, the sad, the fallen,
Who had no strength for the strife,
The world's highway is cumbered to-day—
They make up the item of life.
But the virtue that conquers passion
And the sorrow that hides in a smile—
It is these that are worth the homage of earth,
For we find them but once in a while.

Fatal Ridicule

By Winifred Black

A WELL-KNOWN and successful physician killed himself in Pennsylvania the other day because he couldn't stand the ridicule of his friends.

The physician had become interested in an invention made by an ignorant cobbler and he backed the cobbler to a goodly amount of money.

The invention turned out to be a failure, the cobbler who had dreamed of being a millionaire went back to his cobbling and the physician who had believed in him and his invention tried to go on with his work.

But his friends wouldn't let him.

They had too good a chance to have some fun with a sensitive fellow creature—so they had it.

The doctor stood the jokes and the twittings and the satirical congratulations of his friends—lovely name, that word friend, isn't it? It means so much in a case like this—as long as he could and then he killed himself to get out of the sound of their satirical laughter.

I wonder if the friends who laughed this man to death sent a wreath of roses or a broken column of immortelles to the funeral of the man they murdered.

What a lot of savages there are left in the world, after all!

There are some people who never laugh except at some one's else discomfiture, embarrassment or distress.

Nothing is so funny to them as a look of disappointment and chagrin on the face of one they know.

Strange idea of humor, isn't it?

Of course, it is folly to pay any attention to the satirical laughter of a mean-spirited acquaintance who loves to see you writhe under his sarcasm.

A really strong man would have laughed at the people who laughed at him.

A really strong man would have stood the jokes as long as he cared to, and then he would have given the jokers some kind of a little surprise party of their own which would have kept them too busy to give them time to laugh so hard at him.

This man who died was, of course, weak and over-sensitive, but for that very reason I think I should hate to be one of the people who drove him to an unhappy death; wouldn't you?
